LLOYD GEORGE WANTS LIBERAL LABOUR PACT.

FIVE MEN BURIED UNDER ROOFING.

WANCHAI GODOWN COLLAPSES.

Coolies Seriously Injured.

HOSPITAL CASES.

Five builders' coolies who were half buried under a roofing that collapsed at Wanchai this morning were taken to hospital, where they are being detained with various injuries. Four of them are reported to be seriously hurt.

The building, which is a godown in the course of construction, is situated in Gloucester Road, facing the harbour, at the rear of the Lockhart Road Police sub Station. The five men were working there about 10.30 a.m., putting the finishing touches on the interior, when without warning one of the concrete pillars collapsed, and about a third of the roofing gave way.

Serious Injuries.
A mass of timbers, rubble, bricks and tiles was precipitated down on the men immediately beneath, and they were extricated without much difficulty by other workmen. The ambulance from the Central Fire Station was summoned, and they were all conveyed to the Government Civil Hospital, where it was found that four of them had sustained serious head injuries.

Cause Unknown.
When the roof gave way it took with it a section of about 20 feet square of the tiles and timbers, which fell 15 feet on the workmen. It is not known what was the cause of the pillar collapsing, as police investigating the affair have not yet been able to interrogate the injured men.

NASTY BLASTING MISHAP.

QUARRYMAN BADLY INJURED.

A misadventure is said to have led to a serious blasting mishap occurring on the hillside at Wanchai yesterday, where a new building site is being prepared. A quarryman in charge apparently lost count of the charges laid, with the result that as he rushed in to investigate the results of the detonations, another charge, which he had not taken into account, exploded.

INTREPID AIRMAN.

RECORD FLIGHT ATTEMPT IN MIDGET PLANE.

Athens, Nov. 1.
Mr. C.A. Butler, who is attempting to create a record flight from England to Australia in a midget plane, arrived here to-day, and intends to proceed en route to his destination in 24 hours.
The airman left Lympne at 9.35 a.m. on Saturday in an attempt to reach Australia in eight days. He is flying an 18 ft. machine with 75 horse power engine, which is described as the world's smallest aeroplane.
The route to be followed will be via Baghdad, Calcutta, Singapore and Kupang (Timor).—Reuter.

Mr. Lloyd George.

LORD KYLSANT APPEALS.

HEARING BEGINS TO-DAY.

DRAMATIC CASE RECALLED.

Lord Kysant, the ex-managing director of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, and one of the most dramatic figures ever to appear at the Old Bailey, is to-day opening his appeal before the Criminal Court of Appeal against the sentence passed upon him in July last for issuing a false debenture prospectus.

The shipping magnate was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the second division by Mr. Justice Wright, but he has since remained on bail, after having resigned his chairmanship of the 36 companies comprising the huge Royal Mail "group."

Last Moment Charge.
The charge on which he was convicted was the third preferred, brought at the Guildhall at the last moment, when Lord Kysant appeared to answer two other summonses.

On the two charges originally brought against him, Lord Kysant was acquitted of issuing balance sheets for the years 1926 and 1927 which were alleged to be false in material particulars.

Mr. H. J. Morland, the auditor, who was charged with aiding and abetting Lord Kysant in the presentation of the balance, was, of course, acquitted when the case on these counts were held to have failed.

Shareholders not Sheep.
The Judge's speech occupied four hours. He drew attention to the abuses possible from the use of the secret reserves created by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

He said that the directors apparently forgot sometimes that they ought not to regard the shareholders as sheep that may look up if they are not fed.

Mr. Justice Wright also expressed the opinion that companies' accounts ought henceforth to be kept with greater particularity and information to shareholders. He also dwelt upon the responsibilities of auditors.

CO-OPERATION FOR COMMON ENDS.

CEASE "FIGHTING TO THE DEATH" PLEA.

AID THE UNDERDOG.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE, who, it was hinted just prior to the General Election, might join hands with the Socialists, has emerged into the limelight with a strong plea for co-operation between the advanced Liberals and the Labour Party.

The former Liberal Premier claims that Labour cannot become a truly National Party for at least a generation, and lays stress on the point that Liberal and Labour proposals have much in common. He therefore pleads for the cultivation of closer relations between Liberals, Labour and the progressive elements of all parties.

A further point made is that the big and practical Liberal schemes, such as were outlined in the Yellow Book at the 1929 Election, have never yet been given a trial.

So far, there has been no response to the overtures, whilst the future attitude of the Lloyd George Liberals towards the National Government is not disclosed.

THE "YELLOW BOOK" SCHEME.

London, Nov. 1.
A significant plan for co-operation between advanced Liberalism and Labour for common ends is made by Mr. David Lloyd George, in an interview with the Manchester Guardian, in which he declares there is a fruitful belt of territory that Liberals, Labour and the progressive mind of all parties could cultivate together for years for the benefit of the nation.

To the Death.
Such a co-operative movement, he says, will be "better business in the interests of the underdog, than that his genuine friends should be fighting each other to the death in their competing eagerness to give him first-aid."

A Huge Scheme.
Liberal ideas of a national programme were last disclosed in the Yellow Book. This summed up the results of a detailed enquiry into a programme of capital expenditure, which was carried a stage further by technical advice as to the amount of development work that could be wisely undertaken under the separate heads of roads, housing, electricity, telephone, land drainage, etc. Mr. Lloyd George's great aim was to reduce unemployment and to set the country on the path of prosperity.

Complete Reversion.
His programme, as outlined in 1929, was estimated to cost at least £300,000,000, and he claimed that it could be put into operation without any addition to taxation. This claim was based on a contention that the scheme would cost less than the money it would save in other directions, plus the buoyancy of the revenue attributable to it, plus economies on such things as armaments.

Huge Road Developments.
To be financed entirely out of "betterment" and by pledging the existing assigned revenues of the Road Fund.

Election Rumour.
Very little has been heard of these plans for some time now, but whilst the Labour Government was in power the Liberals were continuously pressing for the putting into operation of some of their schemes.

Liberal Programme.
Mr. Lloyd George's references to the Liberal programme recalls the General Election of 1929, when his Party put forward its views on a national programme in the famous Yellow Book entitled "We Can Cure Unemployment."

As events turned out, however, the Liberals failed hopelessly at the polls, Labour securing a decided victory.

Since that time, until the creation of the National Government, Liberals have co-operated with Captain Without Authority.

Shipping Company Sued For "Unjustified Dismissal."

Damages to be Assessed.

Captain A. G. Corbin, c/o The Cheero Club, City Hall, sued the Wo Ping Steamship Company Limited, No. 47, Des Voeux Road West, in the Summary Court this morning, before the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Lindell), claiming $1,561.70 as salary due as Master of the M.V. Wo Ping Yee, expenses incurred on behalf of the owners, and damages for wrongful dismissal.

Plaintiff alleged the sum of $561.70 in order to bring the action within the jurisdiction of the Court.

Mr. H. L. Denny was for plaintiff, while Mr. F. C. E. Rendall was for the defendant company. Plaintiff stated that he started as Master on July 8, on a written agreement, providing for a salary of $200 and 24 hours notice. When he went for his first month's wages he told Mr. Anderson, the manager, he was not satisfied with the arrangement and asked for an increase. He also asked for authority over the crew as he had found he had no authority over them and they passively resisted his orders. Simultaneously he gave 24 hours notice to the company if his application for increase was not considered, whereupon Mr. Anderson destroyed the written agreement and asked him to carry on at $360 a month provisionally, saying he would have to consult others before he could grant the increase.

Navigational Difficulties.
Plaintiff explained that certain alterations were made to the ship which raised navigational difficulties so he reported the matter to the Harbour Master, who told him to return to his ship. He returned at five o'clock and an hour later received a letter from the company dismissing him.

He said the allegation in the letter that he tried to demand an extra $100 wages was not true and the question of wages was entirely separate from his report to the Harbour Master.

In cross-examination, Mr. Rendall put it to plaintiff that when his demand for another $100 was refused he immediately went to the Harbour Office and made his report about the structural alterations, but witness denied this.

The Defence.
Outlining his defence, Mr. Rendall said that on September 9, the ship being due to sail the next day, plaintiff asked for his wages to be increased to $300 but Mr. Anderson could not agree. Plaintiff thereupon reported the alterations to the Harbour Master who, naturally, had to investigate. The Government Marine Surveyors discovered that the alterations were not serious and the ship was taken out on the following day with a new Master.

Mr. Anderson would say that the alterations were made in July. Plaintiff had admitted that he had come into port on five occasions each month and he could have reported them before had he wished. He need not have left it until he did. Mr. Anderson considered plaintiff was justified in dismissing plaintiff because he refused to sail unless granted the increase of $100 a month, and his report to the Har-

Observer Sent to Investigate.

SOVIET RUMOUR.

New York, Nov. 1.
The conflicting reports concerning the alleged Sino-Russian co-operation and the massing of Soviet troops near Manchuria on the Manchuria border, have apparently had a disquieting effect in America.

Reuters' New York correspondent states that, as a result of the reports, the United States Government is sending an observer to investigate conditions in Northern Manchuria.

Early Rumours.
This action follows the recent reports that there were, between 20,000 and 40,000 Soviet troops massing near the station of Dauria, with a view to entering Manchuria.

When taxed with the allegation, Mr. Karakhan, on behalf of the Soviet Government, recently stated that, according to the Tass Agency, the rumours were based upon absolutely unfounded inventions, emanating from irresponsible persons, interested in spreading provocative rumours regarding the situation in Manchuria.

Mr. Karakhan declared that there were no Soviet instructors among the troops of General Mah, or in any army in any Manchurian Province, nor were arms or ammunition being received, nor had they been received by these troops from Russia.

He emphatically denied that the Soviet Government was assisting either of the struggling factions in Manchuria.—Reuter.

International Labour Protest.

Paris, Nov. 2.
The executive of the Labour and Socialist International, organisation has passed a resolution protesting against the Japanese military action in Manchuria, at the same time regretting that the League of Nations has, up to the present, shown itself powerless to end the Sino-Japanese dispute.—Reuter.

CANTON LEADERS UNITED.

ALL AGREED ON DEMANDS.

Shanghai, Nov. 2.
Although the sixth preliminary session of the Peace Conference has been postponed until tomorrow, one of the Canton envoys has made the significant statement that the Cantonese delegates have the unanimous support of all leaders in Canton, including General Chan Chai-long, Messrs. Hsiao Fu-chong and Teng Tse-ju.

General Ho Ying-ching conferred with the Cantonese delegates at an unofficial session yesterday and deliberated over the procedure governing the coming meeting of the fourth Kuomintang Congress and the peace settlement. The Nanking War Minister's negotiations with the Canton delegates are considered to be satisfactory so far.

The Nanking envoys, Messrs. Ho Ying-ching, Chang Ching-kiang, Wu Tieh-chon, Chan Ming-shu and Chang Chi, departed for Nanking yesterday by the evening express in the company of Messrs. Yu Yu-shan, Shao Lei-tse and Chu Pei-tan.

Marshal Yen Hsi-shan has issued a fresh statement from Tai-yuanfu stating that in view of the crisis facing the National Government, further discussions among the Kuomintang Party would have the most detrimental effect on the Government and the Party.

Smuggler Defrauds Post Office.

SAVING POSTAGE TO JAVA.

Apparently a professional smuggler of letters, a Chinese from Swatow appeared before Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of bringing 273 unstamped letters into the Colony.

The defendant admitted the charges and intimated that they were to have been taken to Java.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton, Post Master General, informed his Worship that the defendant had been arrested bringing the letters into the Colony. He was caught on the Chiuchau wharf on Saturday and, as he had admitted, he had intended taking them out again. If posted in Swatow the letters would cost 25 cents each and if posted in Hongkong 20 cents each.

Mr. Hamilton intimated that he was pressing the case. A fine of $175 was imposed.

THE ANTI-MUITSAI SOCIETY.

THE NEED FOR STERNER MEASURES.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The work of the Anti-Muit sai Society in Hongkong was reviewed at the tenth annual meeting held on Saturday at the auditorium of the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

The meeting was well attended and was presided over by the Rev. Li Kau-yan, the Chairman of the Society.

The English Secretary of the Society, Mr. J. D. Bush, cited cases to prove that the muit sai evil has not been stamped out entirely in the Colony and the Society has still to overcome obstacles before its final goal is reached.

Reviewing the work of the Society during the past year and outlining the programme for the future, the Chairman, Rev. Li Kau-yan said: "On the occasion of the tenth annual meeting of our Society, I wish to convey my most sincere gratitude for the untiring support of the Hon. English and Chinese Secretaries, members of the General Committee, and all our fellow members for their constant advice and ready assistance in the year under review. Without this help the Society could not have achieved such gratifying results."

"Since the formation of this Society in 1922, we have worked with only one object in view, namely that of securing freedom for the thousands of muit sais, and it was not until numerous obstacles had been overcome that in 1929 our labour received full recognition from the British Government who enforced a decree strictly prohibiting the muit sai system. The official decision, undoubtedly, brought great encouragement to our fellow workers in this Society and all lovers of humanity."

Government's Sympathy.

After referring to the Government decree regarding registration, Rev. Li said that this co-operation from the Government showed that the authorities were equally determined to see that the antiquated muit sai institution should be done away with for good and all.

Continuing, the Chairman said: The Government has made the possession of muit sai unlawful, but our work is by no means accomplished, although it has been considerably facilitated by the official co-operation. This Society will not relax in its efforts until all the muit sais have been freed and the entire evil eradicated.

The reasons for the continuance of our society are many. Although the officials have announced that over 4,000 muit sais have been registered there are still many instances where the owners have declined to effect registration. This sort of irregularity is exposed from time to time in the newspapers—and by fines imposed by the Bench. These cases support our belief that the Society will have to maintain its work as a bulwark to the community, giving them constant advice and uttering warnings against abuses under this cruel system. It is only through extensive dissemination of propaganda and teaching that the community on the whole can be convinced that in this age of enlightenment the muit sai institution is most inhuman. Furthermore, cases have been found to show that the buying and selling of muit sais has been going on in the Colony, and this in itself is a direct encouragement to the crime of kidnapping.

Task Not Yet Accomplished.

Registration shows that there are 5,000 to 6,000 muit sais still in bondage in Hongkong. Therefore we cannot hope to accomplish the task of doing away with the system completely at once. Accordingly we desire to extend our work by the establishment of more branches and redoubling our efforts in distributing propaganda to make the people understand

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

CHAPTER XVI

Mark saw instantly that something was wrong. "Why, Norma, you're trembling!" he exclaimed. "Let's get inside! We were infernal idiots to chase out in the rain that way. You're probably drenched to the skin. Come on, Stone."

Hollis Stone followed them into the lobby of hotel. Norma kept her eyes averted from his face.

She knew he was speaking but did not listen to what he said. Her head was buzzing and her temples throbbed. Hollis Stone—Hollis Stone of all the men in the world to be here in this hotel! "An old friend," Mark had called him. Friend!

Not once did she look at Stone directly.

Mark was saying something about her having taken a chill. Even Mark's voice sounded far away against that fearful buzzing in her head.

"—ought to go upstairs and get into dry clothes." It was Mark who was saying that. "Really, Norma, you look all in. Let me take that shawl. It's dripping wet. Don't you think you should go and change? Put on something warm or you're sure to get a rotten cold."

Blessed suggestion! What she needed was to get away. She must get away quickly from everyone and everything in this careening chaos that had once been a world.

With a Spartan effort she steeled herself. "I—I guess you're right," she told Mark. "Maybe I'd better go—feeling a little tired, if you and—Mr. Stone will excuse me."

She refused to let Mark come even to the elevator with her. Once inside the car she clung with both hands to the railing that encircled the little cage. She shut her eyes but she could not shut out tormenting memories.

Mark's voice. "Here's someone I want you to know—an old friend." Oh, could it actually have happened that way?

There was only the operator with her in the elevator. When the car jolted to a stop Norma stepped out, made her way down the corridor to their suite. With a sharp sigh she entered and closed the door. Half way across the room she went back and turned the key in the lock.

Her clothing was not wet. She had not had a chill. Yet methodically the girl tore off her bright sports suit, slippers, gossamer-thin stockings. She caught up the old blue negligee that had been one of the few garments she had brought from her former home and wrapped it about her lightly. Thus clad she crouched in a huge tapestry chair, pillowing her head in her arms.

This was what had come of her happiness! A brief hour—a tiny glimpse of golden perfection. Oh, why had she not known it would end this way!

The throbbing in her temples did not stop. She pressed her cheeks and discovered they were hot. Perhaps she really had taken cold. If it could only be pneumonia! If she could become ill enough would that make any difference to Mark? Would anything in the world make any difference to him?

She could not sit still. Norma got to her feet, moved restlessly about the room. Her thoughts were a scorpion lash, scourging her on.

But perhaps Stone might not say anything—

It was a faint ray of hope, almost electric in the darkness in which the girl felt engulfed. She threw herself upon the bed, and considered this possibility.

"Mark probably knows already," she reasoned. Cold judgment would not let her accept this respite.

There was another possibility.

"Mark might not believe him."

Over and over to herself Norma repeated the words. She said them like a prayer. One minute she was hopeful; the next utterly despondent.

After a time there was a knock at the door but she did not answer. It was a gentle knock and it came a second time.

"Who's there?"

"It's Mark, Norma."

Did she dare to have it over with—to face the inevitable just then? Well, why not now instead of prolonging this torment? What difference could it make?

"I—I'm coming, Mark."

It took a long time for her to release the lock and open the door a scant few inches.

Mark emerged from the hallway. "I was afraid you might want something, darling. How do you feel now? Any better?"

She had not snapped on the lights and dusk was gathering. He could not see how pale she was. He could not see the fright fade from her eyes as she heard his voice, so solicitous, so natural, but he was surprised at the way she clung to him.

"Oh, Mark, I'm glad you've come!"

How sweet to feel strong arms about her. This was her Mark—her husband. Nothing was changed. Everything was exactly as it had been!

"But, honey, you came upstairs to get warmer clothes. That flimsy silk doesn't amount to anything. You ought to take better care of yourself." His scolding was like an endearment.

"I'm all right, Mark. I—everything's all right now."

Presently the lights were glowing and Mark leaned back in a deep chair smoking as he watched Norma brush out her tangled, tawny-coloured curls. She had obeyed all of his instructions. A warm shower and strenuous rub. Now she was wrapped in Mark's flannel robe instead of her negligee. On her tiny feet were gold sandals.

Mark blew a wrath-like spiral of smoke and removed the cigarette from his lips.

"Remember that duck we ran into when we came in?" he asked.

"Stone. I introduced him—"

Norma did not turn. The icy fingers were clutching her heart again.

"Yes." She managed to get out the monosyllable steadily.

"I was surprised to see him turn up here," Mark continued. "He's a dumb bunny—sort of a relative in a way. Distant cousin. Doesn't go in for golf or tennis or any of those things. I don't think he has much money. Why do you suppose a guy like that would want to come to Blue Springs?"

"Why—I don't know."

"Well, I hope he isn't going to make a nuisance of himself. If he does we'll duck, that's all."

The girl sank to a low chair. She did not speak for several moments. Then in a slow voice she said, "Mark, couldn't we have dinner served up here tonight? I'd like that better than going to the dining room."

"Of course we can! Good idea. Want me to ring now for the menu?"

It was a pleasant, companionable meal without the formality of waiters hovering watchfully in the background. Creamed chicken for Norma with salad and fresh fruit. A thick steak for Mark accompanied by vegetables and a hearty desert. Coffee afterward. While they drank the fragrant beverage Norma sat on a low stool at Mark's feet.

"Happy, kid?"

She was, she assured him. But not so happy as she had been before the advent of Hollis Stone. Not so happy as when this paradise about her had seemed to drift on endlessly. Tonight there were doubts, spasmodic moments of terror and black restlessness.

All the next day she did not see Stone and neither she nor Mark mentioned him. Blue Springs was for the time alone. She didn't mean a word of it. Her heart beat in accelerated tempo and a tight knot gathered in her throat as she saw him depart.

She longed to cry out and beg him to stay with her but common sense routed the impulse.

Along, she considered how to occupy the dreary afternoon. Should she walk, visit the shops, go to Florrie's for a shampoo? None of these things appealed. She decided to read and started for the magazine stand.

Our picture shows M. Rabouille, the only witness of the actual disaster, placing flowers under the tree where the wreaths were deposited. (Times copyright).

Norma turned a corner. Cool grey eyes met her levelly. A man's voice, suave and low-pitched, drawled, "Good afternoon, Mrs. Travers."

"Good afternoon!" Hollis Stone faced her squarely. He stood in the centre of her path. "Fine day we're having," he suggested. The tone was formal. Not by the flicker of an eyelash was there evidence of anything but impersonal greeting in the way the speaker.

"Yes, it's—it's a beautiful day."

Nervously Norma twisted the strap of the tiny purse she carried. It fell to the ground. The clasp opened, spilling coins and a vanity case.

Stone rescued the purse and its contents. She thanked him in confusion. Decent courtesy demanded that she should linger and exchange a few words. When at last she was able to escape the girl had forgotten her quest of magazines and hurried toward the elevator. She went to her rooms. So much to try to puzzle out.

She pressed her hands together feverishly until they hurt. What was Stone waiting for? What was behind his silence? How long could she count on it? Over and over she asked herself these questions.

It was late when Mark arrived. He burst into the room, jubilant and noisily enthusiastic. It had been a great afternoon. He had shot 84 and none of the others had done so well. They were determined to take him on again in the morning. Going to be out early!

There was much more about the game of golf. It was a long while before Mark even thought to inquire how Norma had spent the afternoon, whether she had had a pleasant time.

Playfully she evaded in her answers. If he had not even missed her during these hours of separation she would not confess she had been lonely. When they were ready to go down to dinner Norma was determinedly gay. She maintained the pose throughout the meal and afterward when they danced.

It was a different Norma, however, who later when they were alone together drew herself slowly away from Mark's arms. Her face was colourless but it did not betray emotion.

She had nerved herself for the bravest moment of her life. In a dry voice Norma said: "I—I want to talk to you about something, Mark."

And What Does It Taste Like?

It has the same taste as all excellent brands of coffee. It is a blend of the choicest central and South American qualities without any admixture. While it stimulates it will never have any harmful effect because it has been decaffeinated. It is therefore also an ideal beverage for children and for those suffering from nerves or heart.

WOMEN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

Evening Coat Must Follow Lines of the Gown.

Originality is the first requisite, if you would have your evening wrap the epitome of chic. Left: Very formal, very elegant and very sumptuous is a long wrap from Jean Patou chiffon gown. The wrap's sleeves are tremendously picturesque and a huge floral posy in Patou's is to top a black Imperial satin gown with a black wrap of the same that boasts white sleeves and an original roll collar softly draped. A black hat with a bandana of white camellias is very appropriate.

[By Jean Patou.]

Paris.—When analyzing evening styles there is a tendency, I have noticed, to give a very detailed description of the gowns, but scant attention ever seems to be paid to the ensemble composed by the wrap and gown. For some unknown reason this is made to appear quite unimportant.

The question of an evening wrap is, nevertheless, of great importance in the creation of an evening ensemble and a couturier is bound to study the final effect of the two rather than either the dress or the wrap separately.

The matter of colour intervenes in the creation of an evening wrap to a larger extent than in the case of the outsider and the liaison that has to be effected between the cut and style of the dress and the accompanying coat is of first importance.

Wraps of Varied Lengths Are Chic.

Both the long and the short evening wrap are smart this season.

SHAGREEN AND SNAKESKIN

The attractive shagreen cigarette-cases which have become so popular of late, are now being combined with a delightful result. A square shagreen case has one corner edged with silver, and several lines of snake-skin, are arranged in the manner of the sun's rays, from the corner.

FOR THE MODERN BATH-ROOM.

The modern towels for the bathroom are decorated at either end with a pattern reminiscent of a Grecian frieze. The background of the pattern is coloured in a pale blue, mauve, pink or green, while the design itself is made to stand out from the towel.

PETIT-POINT.

Petit-point is still fashionable for handbags, and the newest bags combine satin and petit-point. A useful and smart bag in a pouch shape is composed of black satin, and the top of the satin is gathered to a gold mount, which is decorated at each side with a band of petit-point.

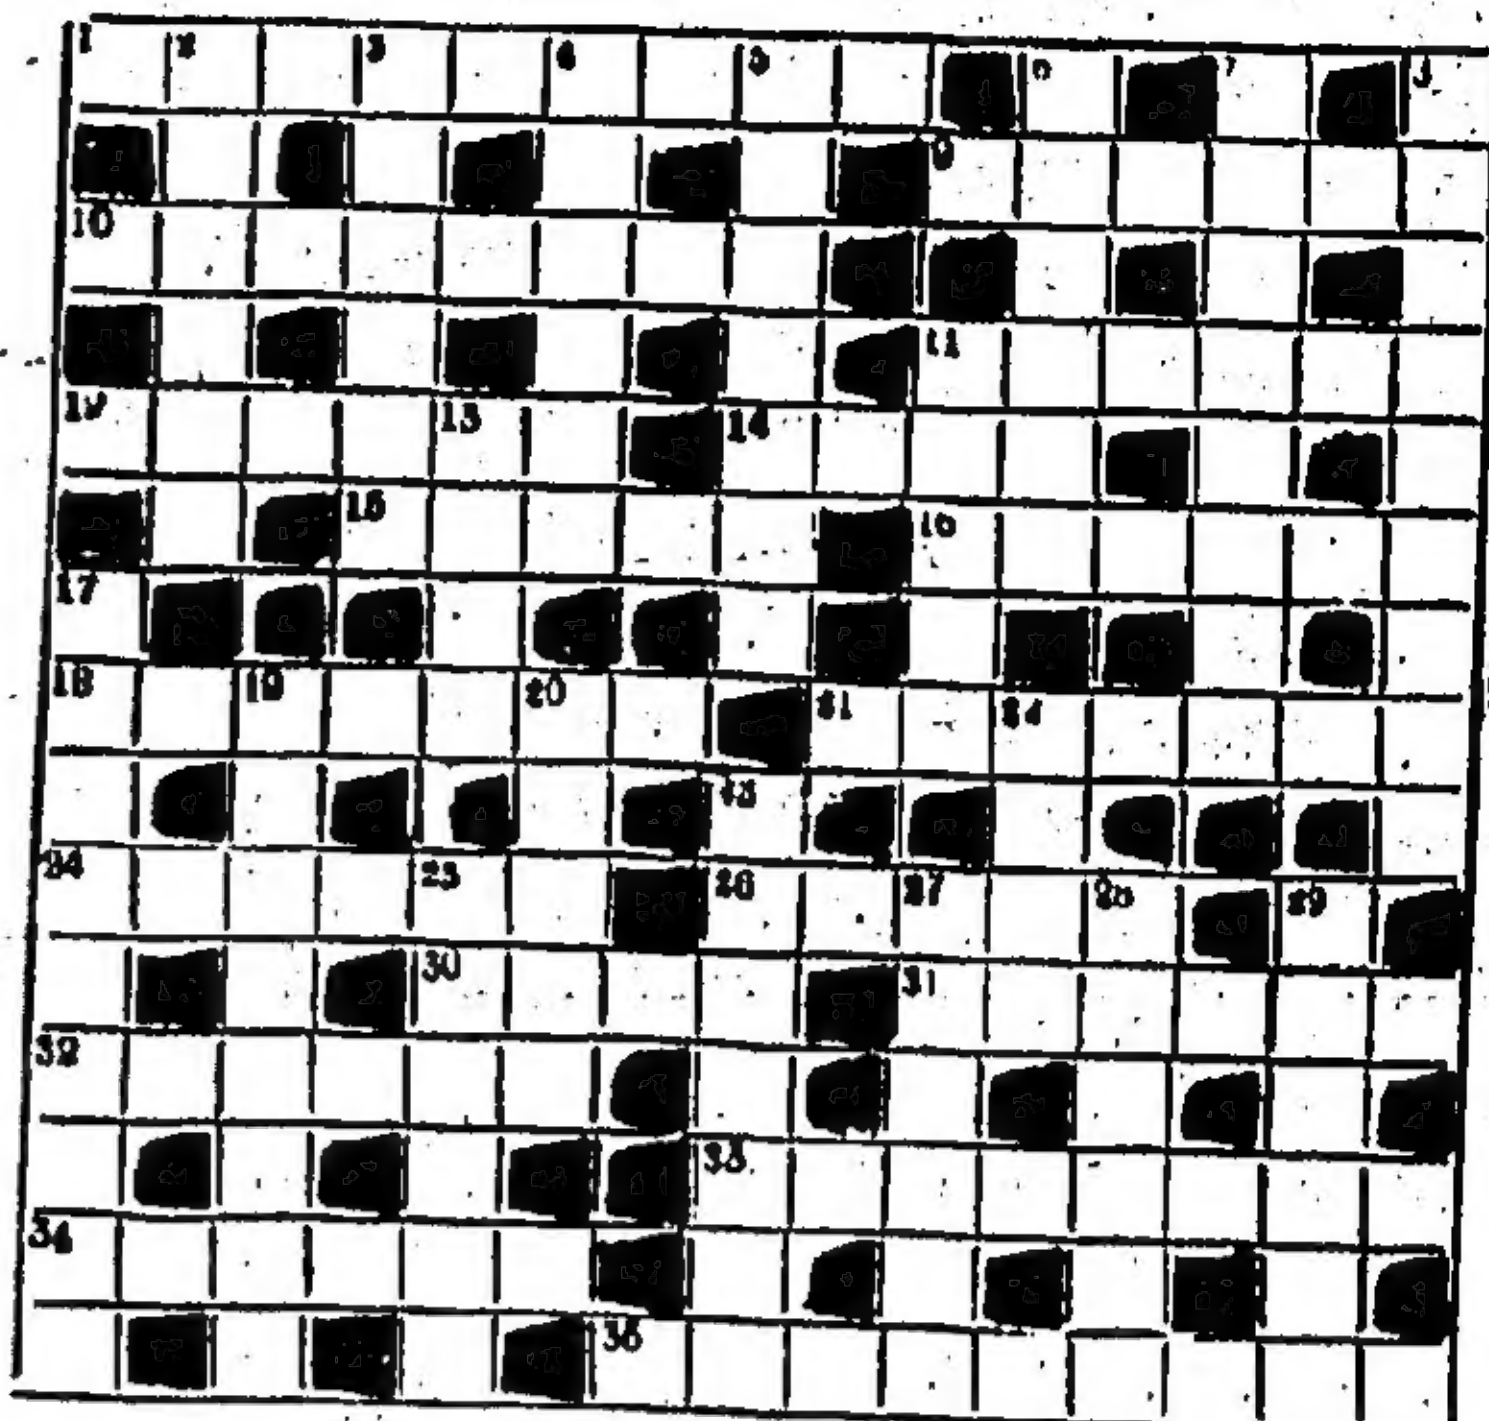

whereas a satin gown, because not so sheer, can be completed by a much shorter wrap.

Coat and Dress Must Harmonize.

When the dress is hidden by a long coat, it is necessary that the latter should not destroy in any way the originality of the dress. A couturier must, in this case, create a coat on the same lines as the dress and in the same style.

A new treatment of the sleeves, shows varying degrees of fullness and a great deal of fantasy in the shape—only permissible in evening clothes, of course. Collars are usually of the same material, sometimes of the shawl persuasion and softly draped, and more often than not a bunch of flowers, reproducing and harmonizing with the colours of the ensemble, puts the finishing touch to the simple neckline. A good deal of dress sense must intervene here, not to run the risk of placing too big a flower or too scanty a posy, not to speak of a careful study of the general lines of the wearer.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

CLUB DEFEATED IN HARD GAME.

The meeting between the Hongkong Rugby Club and the Army at Sookun-poo on Saturday produced a particularly hard fought and fast encounter, with the Army emerging deserved winners by ten points to six.

Granham played with resource and courage at full back for the winners, while of a clever and virile three quarter line, Richards stood out prominently. The half backs and forwards combined well throughout, and no weak spot could be found in them.

The Club were best served by Witham, Robertson, Lammert and McElney.

The Army scored first through Walters, who went over from a pass from Selby and Tratt converted. A few minutes later Walters repeated his first success, Tratt again adding the extra points.

After this the Club recovered and enjoyed the best of the exchanges. Lammert got through for a brilliant try, but Robertson failed with the kick. A goal landed by Robertson gave the Club their next three points, but thereafter the Army recovered and easily held their own until the close.

THE DEPRESSION IN AMERICA.

The depression in the United States, as in many other countries, is being reflected in many ways. For example, the people have taken to hoarding their ready cash, according to an Investors' syndicate, which cites figures to show that the amount of currency in circulation to-day is approximately twenty-five per cent. higher than the average for the last five years. Yet business is far below normal. The explanation is that this vast amount of money is not moving as it should. In 1929, a dollar bill was estimated to change hands ten times in a day; to-day, it hardly changes hands once. Looking at the future, the syndicate points out that in past depressions, hoarding has been one of the last developments before a general improvement in trade. With such a large amount of money in the hands of the ultimate consumer, it takes only a small increase in the speed of circulation to make a significant turn for the better. Whether past history is soon likely to repeat itself, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, the people of America are living in a time of extraordinary confusion and strain. Indeed, there are moments when it seems as if this confusion were the heaviest of all the loads this post-war generation must carry. The war did a great many highly damaging things to the world, but nothing was ultimately more damaging than the way it knocked the old certainties on the head. In the old days, as at present, depression and hunger and unrest visited America every so often; but no matter what happened the people felt that they knew exactly where they were going, and why, and they were always sure that if they hung on tightly things would get better after a while and their troubles would be forgotten. But today the slogans that used to cheer have lost their magic. As one American writer puts it: "We can no longer accept our great men on faith; instead we examine them cynically to see just where and how each one got his." The depression in America is a reflection of the depression in the national destiny has faded; the most forthright patriot wonders, now and then, if these infamous Russians may not, conceivably, know something that it would be good for us to know too. Having lost our belief in a great many things, we have lost much of our belief in ourselves, and it is bad for us. That, very likely, is why the people of America are taking this depression so much to heart. Visitors from Europe have wondered why they feel so badly; America's depression, they say, is nothing compared to what the Germans are putting up with, but they are more vocal about it than all the European nations put together. The answer probably is that America is feeling the reaction from the high hopes she used to have.

To quote again from an American commentator: "We are badly confused about everything. Being badly confused, we can't see through the clouds anywhere. We cannot make ourselves believe that hard times will ever end. We cannot realize that ultimately we shall get back our lost self-confidence. We are paying, perhaps, for the cockiness with which we accepted our years of good fortune."

To quote again from an American commentator: "We are badly confused about everything. Being badly confused, we can't see through the clouds anywhere. We cannot make ourselves believe that hard times will ever end. We cannot realize that ultimately we shall get back our lost self-confidence. We are paying, perhaps, for the cockiness with which we accepted our years of good fortune."

CHINA EXHIBITION.

OPENING ON THURSDAY AT THE CITY HALL.

Thursday is the first day of the eagerly-awaited China Exhibition which will be opened by His Excellency the Governor and Sir Shou-sen Chow. The opening ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. in the Theatre Royal, His Excellency making the opening speech in English and Sir Shou-sen Chow in Chinese.

The Exhibition offers a very tempting but both to those who are already interested in "Things Chinese" and to those who are not so interested at present but who will be after they have visited the Exhibition. To those who are already lovers of Chinese Art, the centre of attraction will be St. Andrew's Hall, where a representative collection of Chinese porcelain, bronzes and paintings will be shown. These exhibits are all lent by local collectors and the opportunity of seeing them is absolutely unique. Those who are interested in Chinese Art, but who do not consider themselves experts will find the lectures to be delivered by Rev. H. du T. Pyner on Thursday afternoon at 5.30 p.m. and by Mr. Li Hon on Friday afternoon at 6.00 p.m. most helpful. Mr. Pyner will speak on Porcelain and Mr. Li King Hon on Chinese pictures, both lectures will be illustrated by reference to the actual exhibits.

In the Crafts section, men will be seen at work, making fireworks, carving ivory, making lanterns and paper decorations, reeling silk, turning jade, carving blackwood, working in silver and brass, and making such everyday articles as rattan mats, feather dusters, bamboo hats, palm-leaf raincoats, and grass sandals.

At various times during the day, there will be Lectures, Demonstrations and Tableaux in the Theatre Royal. Fairlea School will present a series of Tableaux illustrating the ceremonies attendant upon the celebration of the 60th birthday on Thursday at 5.30 p.m. and on Friday at 5.30 p.m. A similar series of Tableaux portraying the ceremonies connected with a Chinese Wedding will be presented by St. Stephen's Girls' College at 6.15 p.m. on Thursday and at 5.45 p.m. on Saturday. The Young Cheung Girls' School will present a Chinese historical play "The Story of King Tai Shun" on Friday and Saturday at 6.30 p.m. On Saturday at 5.00 p.m. Mr. Pun In Tat will deliver a lecture on Chinese Music illustrated with selections from various pieces.

In the evening, the principal attraction will be the fireworks display on the Murray Parade Ground. On Friday and Saturday, this is timed to commence at 9.00 p.m., but on Thursday the display will commence at 7.00 p.m. in order that children may have a better chance of seeing the show.

Admission to the Exhibition, Crafts, Stalls, etc., is $1 (Service men and children under 12—50 cts.) Admission to any lecture or display, 20 cts., to fireworks, 50 cts. A Patron's ticket admits to all parts of the Exhibition on all three days.

John Boles pleased Queen's Theatre audiences yesterday with his singing in the Song of the West, a story of pioneering days in which he is supported by a capable cast. There are some picturesque scenes in technical colour, and drama and comedy are well mixed to confer a variety of interest on the production. The production, which includes a musical, is a very attractive and well-staged affair.

DAY BY DAY

I REGARD THAT MAN AS LOST, WHO HAS LOST HIS SENSE OF SHAME.—Plautus.

Pack Your TIME and Says SIR HENRY HADOW. MIND.

One morning, when I was staying in an Austrian village, there arrived unexpectedly a number of pilgrims, on their way to a neighbouring shrine, all clamorous and all demanding food.

The waiters were nonplussed; they flustered helplessly round the innyard distributing at random, and the result was that one man got a knife but no fork, another a dish but no plate, another a cup but nothing to put into it, and nobody was satisfied.

I have sometimes been reminded of this by the contents of my post-bag. The letters are many and urgent; they deal with a large variety of subjects, there is a danger of letting them press and jostle each other out of attention, of interrupting each to give a hand to the next, and so the time goes by and there is nothing done.

Flurried work is always hasty, and hasty work is nearly always scamped.

Bad Work and Hurry.

A great employer once told me that when, in visiting his shops, he found a workman speeding up his job at high pressure, he always gave that man a bad mark. "It means," he said, "that he has neglected something and is trying to make up arrears."

Packing time is like packing a portmanteau. One man puts in everything that by any stretch of imagination he could expect to use, and the portmanteau will not shut.

Another vacillates and delays over the process and hovers until he misses his train.

Another flings in an armful, and finds at his journey's end that his sponge is among his pyjamas and his boots among his dress shirts.

And the fine flower of both arts is to know how to utilize the small spaces.

Loose Ends of Time.

There are many people who have no idea what to do with themselves if lunch is five minutes late. They could, if they were so minded, look up a reference or set out a piece of apparatus which they are going to want later, or write a formal note—only a few lines, but it makes all the difference at the other end.

Any of these is better than what Stevenson calls "sitting bolt upright upon a bench with lamentable eyes."

I have little sympathy with people who needlessly overcrowd their day; I have none with those who say that they have "had no time" to read or to keep an engagement, or to look after their correspondence.

In at least ninety-nine cases out of a hundred "I had no time" means either "I had no inclination" or "I did not remember."

If the art of packing the day is valuable, that of packing the mind is paramount.

Here the danger is less one of disposition than of content—an untidy mind is a jumble of false opinions.

him to emphasise the instances in favour of a hypothesis and to disregard the exceptions on the other side.

The second comes from the bias and prejudice of individual observers. The three doctors in Mr. Shaw's play could never hope to come to agreement—one is a laboratory researcher who looks at science through a test-tube, one a surgeon with a favourite operation, one a general practitioner who looks on sera and surgery with an equally tolerant disbelief.

The Personal Bias.

History, again, is more often the portrayal of a view than of its subject: the Abbe Migno tells us that the religious persecutions which defaced the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. ceased for a time under Mary, to break out with renewed violence under Elizabeth.

But there is no need to multiply examples. A week-old description of a street-accident will contain almost as many versions as there were witnesses to record it.

The third and most fruitful source of error is our careless and inaccurate use of words. There are some names to which no fact corresponds, like the Painter's Island of the old maps and the Perfection of the old herbals; others, like Socialism, liberty, self-expression, do represent realities, but are so vague and indeterminate that they have become fruitful sources of confusion.

The fourth is over-addition to systems which have become obsolete in the progress of further discovery. The Ptolemaic astronomy gave way before Copernicus, the boundaries of the Newtonian physics have been enlarged by Einstein: it is equally foolish to disparage our great men and to accept their conclusions as eternally valid.

No doubt Bacon was wrong in holding that his method would "equalise all intellects." No method without genius could have given us Faraday, as no Faraday without method could have brought us electricity. But the greatest investigators have been the most painstaking. They have known how to "fill the unforgetting minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run," and the economy which they have practised in a large field is a model for us to imitate in the narrow range of our everyday concerns.

"Boom" Trenchard.

By RAMEC.

So another great war figure is to control the destinies—and the discipline—of the Metropolitan Police Force.

Lord Eyns, who retires from the Commissionership, marched his men along the ground—and stormed Vimy Ridge.

Lord Trenchard, who succeeds him, has dropped from the clouds; a super-Daedalus who has shed his wings so that he may take a look at London's under-world—among other things.

He has by no means "crashed," but he has most certainly come to earth.

At first glimpse the reason for this exchange of atmospheres might not seem very apparent. What especial qualification has Daedalus for catching cat burglars, restraining the florid activities of night club queens, solving murder-mysteries and keeping a vigilant eye on the policeman's right to superannuation?

This is to take but a superficial regard of Lord Trenchard's qualifications.

Human—and Humane.

He is, in fact, a man designed to inspire confidence in the hearts of both householder and policeman. Physically he is a giant, and his very considerable chest measurements contain all the heroic virtues of the ideal guardian of the law.

He has the power to command, but is understanding; is a disciplinarian, but compassionate; stands no nonsense from anyone, but is not a bully.

The Army exercised no narrowing influences on Trenchard. Before he took to the air he served with Scotsmen, South African Bushmen, Canadian Scouts and West Africans.

Nor did he, while acquiring air ascendancy, run his head into "frightfulness." "I do not want you to think that I look upon the air as a blessing altogether," he told the Cambridge undergraduates.

"I feel that all the good it will do in civil life cannot balance the harm that might be done in war by it, and if I had the casting vote I would say: 'Abolish the air!'"

THEFT OF WATCH
& REVOLVER."BOY" ESCAPES COMMITTAL
FOR TRIAL.

PRISON SENTENCE.

Terms of imprisonment amounting to a year's hard labour were imposed on a house coolie on his appearance before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on charges of stealing a gold watch and chain belonging to Mr. Mackay of 9, Causeway Hill and a revolver and six rounds of ammunition, the property of Mr. J. Barnes of the adjoining house.

The defendant, who gave his age as 14, admitted both counts.

Sub-Inspector Roger said that the defendant was a house coolie in the employ of Mr. Mackay who lived at 9, Causeway Hill while Mr. Barnes resided next door. On October 4 last Mr. Barnes reported to the Police, the loss of a revolver and ammunition and on October 10, Mr. Mackay informed the Police that his gold watch and chain had been stolen from his residence.

Works Extracted.

Enquiries were made and the defendant was eventually convicted. A search of his property revealed the gold watch and chain but the works had been extracted from the watch casing. After being taken to the Police Station the defendant was questioned and he took the Police to the hillside and there produced the revolver which he had hidden.

Continuing, the prosecuting officer said that the defendant had intended melting the watch casing and chain and had thrown away the works, which could not now be recovered. It was a valuable watch and cost the owner £10 when new ten years ago. It was also of great sentimental value.

Sub-Inspector Roger said that he had interviewed the Director of Criminal Investigation and was instructed to ask his Worship to impose the maximum penalty on each charge. The defendant gave his age as 14 but he was at least 17 or 18. If he had not been so young application would have been made for his committal to the Criminal Sessions.

Reluctant Prisoner.

The defendant had given the Police no information whatever as to what he intended doing with the revolver; very likely he would have sold it. When stolen the revolver was not loaded, the ammunition having been kept in a box but when found it was loaded in all six chambers.

The officer mentioned that there had been several other larcenies from the buildings of the locality, a former employer of the defendant having also lost some money some time ago.

In reply to the Bench the defendant said that his original intention was to steal money, but finding none, he had taken the revolver. He had intended to return it.

When pointed out that he had taken it nearly a month ago, the defendant said that he had had no opportunity of putting it back as his employer had been very watchful since the losses had been discovered. The defendant was sentenced to six months' hard labour on each charge.

PING PONG LEAGUE.

HON. MR. HO IU TO PRESENT
PRIZES.

All ping pong matches conducted under the auspices of the Hongkong Ping Pong League have now come to a close and arrangements have been made for the various prizes to be given away by Mr. Ho Yu, Hon. President of the League, at the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium on Thursday evening, the 11th inst. A series of exhibition matches will take place after the distribution of prizes.

A list of prize-winners is given below:
Senior League.—1st, Keung Wah Athletic Assoc.; 2nd, South China Athletic Assoc.; 3rd, Confucius Assoc.
Junior League.—1st, Confucius Assoc.; 2nd, South China Athletic Assoc.; 3rd, Fukien Athletic Assoc.
Men's Open Singles.—1st, Chan Ying-ding; 2nd, Lee Tat-hung; 3rd, Lee Chun-shan and Siu Siu-kau.
Ladies' Open Singles.—1st, Miss Young Wai-hung; 2nd, Miss Ko Lai-ning; 3rd, Miss Chu Kiu-sun.
The Committee's thanks are due to those who have kindly contributed prizes and donations, also to the various Clubs whose premises have been used for the various matches over since the League was first formed.

As an indication of the increasing enthusiasm in this game, it is well to mention that this year 49 entries were received for the Men's Open Singles, and 17 for the Ladies' event, whilst 22 teams took part in the various League matches.
As to the Triangular Inter-Club Contest, for which Mr. Ho Yu has generously consented to donate a Championship Trophy, arrangements are now being made for this to take place some time next month. It is reported with regret, however, that

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Disraeli."

[To the Editor, Hongkong
Telegraph.]

Sir,—Permit me to point out that while the film, "Disraeli," is full of inaccuracies (Dizzy addressing the House of Commons as "Gentlemen," instead of "Mr. Speaker," etc.), your film critic's suggestion that Dizzy's wife could not be Lady Beaconsfield before her husband became a Peer is incorrect.

He had her made a Peeress in her own right (Viscountess, I think), and so the pair were Mr. Disraeli and Lady Beaconsfield until 1876, when Disraeli was created an Earl.—Yours, etc., P.S.C.

Sir,—In last Friday's issue, your reviewer of the film "Disraeli" makes the following comment in reference to Mrs. Disraeli: "Artificially described in the film as Lady Beaconsfield before her husband had been created an Earl." Perhaps you will permit me to point out that the description of Mrs. Disraeli as Lady Beaconsfield is historically accurate. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Disraeli was created Viscountess Beaconsfield under the following circumstances: At the end of Disraeli's first Premiership in 1868, Queen Victoria expressed her desire to raise him to the peerage, but as he did not wish to leave the House of Commons he begged of Her Majesty that which she readily assented, and Disraeli thus remained plain "Mr." up to the time of the death of his wife.

As showing the deep affection he entertained for his wife, it is related that at the General Election of 1874, when he was returned with a substantial majority, and Corry, his Private Secretary, and life-long friend, congratulated him on his victory, Disraeli made the pathetic reply:—"Yes, Corry, we have arrived to the front of the stage, but we have lost our audience," the loss being that of his wife and his devoted sister, his "Dearest Sa." Yours, etc., JOSEPH GOULD.

due to the absence of the proper organization, Canton will not be able to send a team to Hongkong for this purpose. While hoping that this inter-club event will be a "triangular" one, the League Committee have decided to make the contest between Hongkong and Macao if the visit of the Canton team cannot be arranged.

DULL INTERPORT
TRIAL.SLOW SCORING ON SATURDAY.

The interport trial match on Saturday afternoon was once again a drab affair. Nothing of note occurred at all, and play was rather dull.

Exactly 200 runs were scored during the whole afternoon, which works out at less than a run a minute. Too much respect was paid to the bowlers. Batmen adopted the "safety first" policy and left everything on the off severely alone, and played only the straight one and those to the leg side. Their overcautious tactics were never inspiring.

The bowlers in turn were not very impressive, though it must be said that some of them would have returned better figures if the fielding was anything like interport standard.

Out Fielders alone, at least two catches were dropped. Mackay let down one from Pearce, and Hancock from Fincher, both off this bowler.

Owen Hughes and McLellan were top scorers for their side, but both were given second knocks. The former was the victim of a beautiful catch by Hunter in the country off Richardson, and McLellan succumbed to a beauty sent down by Pearce with his score at seven.

Hancock's XI had made 66 for the loss of one wicket when stumps were drawn. Cpl. Davis and Gittins batted well, the former being not out with 30 and the latter also not out with 18.

CHAMPIONS GO UNDER.

Police Spring A Surprise
At Sookunpoo.

The weak batting of the Indians was responsible for their defeat at the hands of the Police, who won by four wickets. With the exception of A. S. Bullad, all the other batsmen were not impressive, only two others reaching double figures.

Baker and Hunter captured three wickets each for 16 runs, while Minty took two for 16 and Alexander two for 31.

The Police started very badly, five of their wickets falling for just over 30 runs, and it looked at one time as if the Indians might manage to pull the game out of the fire. What ever hopes the Indians held were dashed however when Alexander and Booker were associated in a partnership which saw the total of the home team being passed.

Their defeat has rather jeopardised the chances of the Indians repeating their success of last year, but as it is very early in the season, this pull-up may not affect them very seriously.

BORDERERS WIN.

A Close and Exciting Game
at King's Park.

In an exciting game played at King's Park, the South Wales Borderers registered their second victory in the Junior League at the expense of the Club de Recreo, one of the strongest sides in the second division. For their score of 135, the Borderers had Barlow to thank. This player played a good innings for 84 before being bowled by Gutierrez. Alves captured four wickets for 30, Gutierrez three for 21, and Figueroa two for 26.

In the course of Recreo's innings, it looked at one time as if the military would win easily, and towards the end when Carvay and Silva were associated in a last-wicket partnership, Recreo stood a chance of winning, but the last wicket fell when they were still six runs short of their opponents' total.

FRIENDLY MATCHES.

Kowloon C.C. Easily Defeat
Civil Service.

F. Zimmer's six wickets for 12 runs was a feature of the match between Kowloon C.C. and Civil Service at Happy Valley. Kowloon's batting strength was once again demonstrated, knocking up 200 for the loss of three wickets in quick time. E. F. Fincher had 60 (not out) to his credit and F. E. Lawrence 61.

Thanks to Zimmer the whole Civil Service side was out for 72 runs only. B. D. Evans and F. Baker were the only players to offer any resistance to the K.C.C. attack, their scores being 26 and 20 respectively.

Navy v. Artillery.

In a low-scoring match at King's Park, the Royal Artillery defeated the Royal Navy by 24 runs. Batting first the military side scored 75, of which Comby made 32. McRae captured four wickets for 18 runs and Turnbull two wickets for only one run.

The Navy could do no better than reply with 51, Miller taking three wickets for two runs. Midshipman Boyle scored 22.

C.C.C. 2nd XI v. C.S.C.C. 2nd XI.
Playing at King's Park the Civil Service C.C. 2nd XI defeated the Kowloon C.C. 2nd XI by three wickets. The home team batted first and compiled 110, to which F. S. W. Smith contributed 23. The visitors passed this total with three wickets in hand, "extra" being the highest contributor with 39.

C.C.C. 2nd XI v. H.K.C.C. 2nd XI.
A drawn game was played at Happy Valley between the second strings of the Hongkong C.C. and Craigengower C.C. Batting first, the visitors put up the huge score of 237 for nine wickets. Dowler contributing 88 and Elliot 62. The home team replied with 153 for four wickets. Leonard made 68.

R.M. & S. v. D.B.S.

OMAR WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP.LAING GOES DOWN
FIGHTING.

After having been prominent in the championship since he secured it in 1923, U. M. Omar carried off the Open Lawn Bowls Singles Championship on Saturday, by defeating J. Laing, 21 to 14, at the K.C.C. green.

The contest was closer and more interesting than the big margin in scores indicated, for there was little between the players up to the ninth end, and even although Omar went well away at that stage, Laing kept playing steadily. He made the mistake of trying to force the pace, and some heavy woods in the 16th left him in a bad position. The handicap proved too much for him.

Omar handled his woods carefully, and curved in with great accuracy, although two or three shots were a trifle light.

tisement. He has a deep bass voice that makes itself heard— even in discreet distances; but does not believe in shouting.

"When you give a word of command, let it be a word of command that can be understood," is his advice to lusty N.C.O.s. "Don't roar like a lion in its cage."

As organiser and disciplinarian he should find his new task scarcely more difficult than his old one. At the end of the time the personnel of the Air Force had developed from more heterogeneous handful to 27,909 officers and 263,842 other ranks. They had attained to a matchless prestige and morale, and to a man they idolised their chief.

VOLUNTEERS DEFEATED.

Playing at Happy Valley yesterday, the Craigengower Cricket Club defeated the Volunteers by 88 runs. The home team compiled 187 runs. J. L. Youngs was the top-scorer with a well-played 53. McLellan, for the Volunteers, was in good form with the ball, capturing six wickets for 53 runs.

Good bowling by the home team prevented the Volunteers from scoring and they were eventually dismissed for 101 runs. Gittins took four wickets for 35 runs and four butts three for 21. Scores:

POWER

Even the meek desire power of some kind; it is a primary instinct. So men write and paint, work and travel. And engineers perform greater tasks than Hercules. Horse-power is their servant—they harness it for us. Long, lithe carriages whisper softly on their way—a hundred horses leashed. Mighty air-craft mount and ride the air. Torrents of power flow smoothly—for Castrol is master of friction, wear and heat.

Castrol—being British—is sold by the Imperial gallon of 9 lbs. which is the legal measure in the Colony.

KOWLOON GET A SHOCK.

RATTLED BY POLICE METHODS.

CLUB PUT UP GAME STRUGGLE.

By "Wanderer."

The Police scored their first win of the season on Saturday and provided the one surprising result of the afternoon. Strong and bolterous tackling, fast ridding forwards, threw Kowloon completely out of their stride, and the Police were well worth their two points.

The Club did exceedingly well to hold the Borderers, while the Recrelo made a great recovery to defeat St. Joseph's.

KOWLOON ALL AT SEA.

Police Win Well for First Time This Season.

Kowloon 2 Police 4
Beginning with a promise of good things, this was a game which degenerated past belief. Kowloon being a badly beaten side at the close. Bolterous Police methods rattled them to such an extent that cohesion was entirely lost; they gave a wretched exhibition. The Police carried the day with rush tactics, though full credit must be given to Moss for his alertness, which produced three of the four goals.

The Kowloon forwards showed a certain amount of skilful football in midfield (though the Ineson-Duncan combination failed to establish an understanding) but when at shooting range they wanted to do their work all over again, and the strong tackling Police half-back and backs literally bundled them off the ball.

The Police lacked finish and made no attempt to indulge in it, but they took the direct route for goal and worried the Kowloon defence into blunder after blunder. All seemed to be infected, only Bliss having any claim to an exhibition of form anything near normal.

After Hedley had equalised Moss's goal, a keen, but anything but scientific, battle took place for mastery. When, however, Moss seized on the ball near the interval to put the Police ahead, all the sting went out of Kowloon and only spasmodically did they show signs of football ability. Williams put the Police further ahead, Nicholls badly misjudging a dropping shot, Ineson scored for Kowloon, and Moss headed through from a corner. Sheppard was outstanding for the Police, Britain and Perkins also showing good form.

CLUB FIGHT BACK.

Do Well to Draw With the Borderers.

Club 2 Borderers 2

The Borderers were the better team, but the Club deserved their point for their splendid fight against odds.

In certain respects, the Club had the better scheme of attack. They were less prominent than their rivals, but when they were in possession, an impression that they might make something of it was ever present.

The Borderers, on the other hand, well led by Harris, and with Davis performing very cleverly on his right, enjoyed a considerable share of the play, particularly in the second, and if in the important matter of missing the goal by inches they were unlucky, their failure to win was also due to badly directed shots. They were always trying to do a little too much.

Howe opened the scoring fairly early on and Harris, the right winger equalised with a shot apparently intended as a centre. Centre-forward Harris put the army side ahead, and right on time, Bell equalised.

The Borderers were much stronger in defence than the Club.

GOOD RECOVERY.

Recrelo Snatch Victory in Last Minutes.

Recrelo 3 St. Joseph's 2

The Recrelo were two goals down at one stage of their match with St. Joseph's but A. Gosano then decided to go into the forward line and the move was more than justified by events.

P. MORRISON WINS GOLF TROPHY.

RED CROSS COMPETITION WITH 82 ENTRIES.

LEADING SCORES.

Mr. P. Morrison won the trophy presented by the Order of St. John of Jerusalem and the British Red Cross Society for the best return over the Fanling golf course during the week-end. There were 82 entries, and the winner, with a handicap of 14, finished 1 up.

Other scores were: R. K. Hepburn (6) all square. J. L. Dhillon (9) ditto. H. H. Pethick (18) ditto. Col. Skinner (9) 1 down.

LADIES' TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS OF OPEN SINGLES.

The first round matches of the Ladies' Singles Championship have been concluded. The full results including those published previously are given below:

Mrs. K. M. Wood beat Miss L. Hutcheon 6-3, 6-2; Mrs. B. M. Kearney beat Mrs. Dook 6-2, 6-2; Mrs. R. M. James beat Miss D. Graham 6-3, 6-0; Miss Enid Lo beat Mrs. R. E. Tottenham 6-4, 6-4; Mrs. McTavish beat Mrs. M. Majendie 3-6, 8-6, 6-3; Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu beat Miss G. Lo 6-4, 6-1; Miss Thomas beat Miss R. Perry 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. Mrs. Lockner, having drawn, bye will meet Miss Thomas in the second round.

Although he was only personally credited with one of the goals, his part in both the others was considerable, while, still more important, his presence converted a line of stragglers into an effective forward "machine."

There was no fluke about the Recrelo victory, though the winning goal did not come until a minute from time. For the most part, the St. Joseph's attack was well held by the opposition. Xavier's only mistake of the first half cost his side a goal, Leonard, the live wire of the St. Joseph's attack, scoring a splendid goal. In the second half, Leonard was fouled in the penalty area, and Gomes netted from the spot.

Ward, Rocha and Gosano scored goals for the Recrelo.

KEEN RACING AT MACAO.

SMALL FIELDS BUT CLOSE FINISHES.

ONE THIRD PAYS OUT.

The Macao race meeting on Sunday, although suffering from small fields, provided excellent sport, and a number of exciting finishes.

One of the most popular successes of the day was that of One Third, whose reputation in Macao gained for it a strong following. Florinda easily won the last event of the day, which greatly pleased his 120 followers.

Tango, the prime favourite of the meeting, came up to expectations, Mr. G. da Rosa piloting the willing pony past the post to win by three lengths.

SHAMEEN FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

LUSITANO IN TWO MATCHES.

Shameen, Nov. 1.
The Lusitano Club made two appearances in League games during the week. The first was against H.M.S. Seamen and ended in a draw of one goal each. On the run of the play, Lusitano were unfortunate in not annexing both points.

In the second match, they were opposed to H.M.S. Moth and were leading one nil at the interval. Later they were again in the lead, the final score being in favour of the Moth. The League table now reads:—

London, Oct. 31.

After sweeping away all opposition which had pitted itself against them during the last two months, the South African rugby tourists to-day received a check, being forced to a drawn match with South Scotland. The encounter took place at Melrose and neither side scored.—Ruter.

GOLF as the STARS play it

TO COUNTERACT A SLICE
TAKE THE ABOVE STANCE
AND AIM TO THE RIGHT OF THE FAIRWAY

Is it possible to counteract a slice with a hook?

Splicing perhaps more than anything else has been the cause of more timid beginners giving up the game in disgust. Nothing is so aggravating as a tee shot that curves in a disgustingly graceful arc into the rough along the right of the fairway.

The expert who can control his intentional slice is to be envied. But alas! The poor suffer cuts across his ball and sends it spinning, he knows not where.

Allowing for a slice by aiming to the left of the fairway to permit the ball to curve back into the middle will not help matters. The best way is to counteract it with a hook.

Draw the right foot back a bit into a closed stance and aim to the right of the fairway. The result will be a hook.—ART KRENN.

PROSPECTUS.

OBJECTS:—The Company is being formed to carry on the business of Brewers, Distillers, and Sweets Merchants, Cordial, Ice Manufacturers, Dairy Farmers and any other business as indicated in the Memorandum of Association, a copy of which forms part of this Prospectus.

Prospectus of Company:

Owing to the fact that there is not, and there has not and has never been a Brewery in Canton combined also with the fact that the consumption of beer in China is rapidly increasing, the prospects of the Company must be considered as very attractive. In addition to the manufacture of Beer the Company will also carry on the following business:

1. Manufacture and sale of Ice.
2. Manufacture and sale of Cordial and Aerated Waters.
3. Dairy Farming.

In respect of (1). Ice can be produced by a Brewery at a much lesser price than a Company dealing with the manufacture of ice only, owing to the fact that a Brewery must have a Refrigerating Plant for its own requirements and with a small extra outlay can manufacture this commodity. On an output of ten (10) tons of ice per day, after allowing for twenty (20%) per cent. as wastage, it is anticipated that at least thirty (30%) per cent. per annum will be the profit from this branch of the business.

In respect of number (2). In the course of the manufacture of beer there is a collection of C O 2 GAS which is necessary in the manufacture of Cordials or Aerated Waters and therefore as the Brewery department produces that gas at no cost it can be readily appreciated that this branch of the business will be profitable.

In respect of number (3). It is the intention of the Company to establish a most up-to-date system of Dairy Farming. The Dairy cattle to be used will be from the recognized pure bred. Every precaution will be taken to ensure that all milk and meat to be sold by the Company will be of the highest standard and to be handled under a most hygienic and up-to-date system. The services of a qualified Veterinarian and Agriculturist are available to the Company and his duties will be not only to make regular inspections of the cattle, but also to see to it that all the vegetables grown by the Company will be cultivated under the most hygienic systems. In this connection it must be noted that from the Brewery there is another "Bye Product" which can be utilized by the Dairy Farm Branch without cost and that is the residue of each brew of beer consisting of the malt, hops, etc., that remain after the beer or stout has been "taken off". This residue can be used either as feed for stock or fertilizer.

HOCKEY.

HONGKONG LADIES DEFEAT THE C.B.A.

In a rather scrappy game, the Hongkong Ladies hockey team defeated the Central British Association ladies team at King's Park on Saturday by the only goal scored.

A typical burst through the defence by Miss Donelan gave Hongkong a goal lead in the first half, and although each side had innumerable opportunities of scoring as the game progressed, the score remained unaltered. The Kowloon ladies were somewhat unfortunate to suffer defeat, as they had a fair share of the exchanges, but lacked thrust in front of goal.

Borderers Win.

On the U.S.R.C. ground on Saturday, the South Wales Borderers defeated the Jat Regiment by four goals to two.

Johnstone showed excellent marksmanship by scoring all four points for the Borderers. The game throughout was of a fast and clean nature, though the Jats were obviously outplayed. The Jats were successful in scoring from a corner and added their second goal just on time. Johnstone scored two goals in each half.

Y.M.C.A. Lose.

At King's Park on Saturday, at 2 p.m. the Y.M.C.A. "A" lost to H.M.S. Berwick by 5 goals to 2.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRE.

Mr. Alexander Oumansky was engaged to create and stage the dance numbers in the theatrical sequences of "Harmony Heaven," which Thomas Bentley directed for British International Pictures at Elstree. Mr. Oumansky began his career in Russia, but in 1911 he went to America. Eventually he became associated with the famous Russian dancer, Nijinsky. He toured the States as a solo dancer and later became the ballet master at the then biggest cinema in America—The Capitol. In 1924 he joined the Famous Players, and in the following year went to Germany at the invitation of the UFA Company. He has devised dance sequences in many successful pictures, notably, "The Merry Widow" and "The Four Sons." Among his pupils were Mae Murray and Mary Eaton. In England he was the first to put on the American Ballets and stage productions at the Empire Theatre, Leicester Square, and was responsible for the introduction of the High Speed Ballet into English Vaudeville, notably at the Palladium and the Alhambra. "Harmony Heaven" is due at the Queen's on Thursday.

"The Conquering Horde."

The excitement-craving public gets a feast for its thrill-appetite in "The Conquering Horde," Paramount's newest Richard Arlen starring picture.

"The Conquering Horde" which is now showing at the King's Theatre, is a story of men without law. A story of crisp action. A story of banking skyscrapers. Of wild Comanches. Of brave men and of one of the wildest, the elements and the treacherous outcasts of civilization who prey upon them.

There is suspense-sustaining drama, thrilling action and glamorous romance. There is an abundance of whimsical, of times uproarious comedy.

Emerson Hough, the author of the famous American western stories, from the original story, "North of 36," from which George Jones and William Slavens McNutt made the adaptation for the screen.

It is a tale of red-blooded doings in a day of empire-building that is still remembered by observers. It tells of the adventures of a courageous band of Texas ranchers led by a soldierly youth into the unknown of the wilderness, across strange and perilous fastnesses, to the final triumph of their ambitions—civilization with its fame and fortune. As staged the production, in which George O'Brien, the New Viennese enterprise is the girl who feared to love him because she thought him a traitor, but respected him nevertheless because she knew his courage and his strength. "The Conquering Horde" has everything that appeals to the public taste for excitement and spine-tingling action. It is a corking good yarn of the always-fascinating outdoors West.

"The Sea Beneath."

Using a surface vessel in co-operation with an Allied submarine as a U-boat trap, resulted in the destruction of many German subs during the war, according to Director John Ford of the Fox movie studio offering, "The Sea Beneath," coming to the King's Theatre next Tuesday. This procedure was used in making the picture, a big schooner being fitted up like a wartime "mystery ship" with a concealed gun, and towing a U.S. submarine "S-47," the largest commissioned underwater craft in the world, enacting the role of a German U-boat, the thrilling naval-battle climax of "The Sea Beneath" is said to be a real thing.

George O'Brien has the leading role and his romance with the sister of the U-boat's captain, a role played by the new Viennese actress, Marion Lessing, is cleverly interwoven into the plot. William Collier, Sr., noted stage and screen player, had a dual task in the making of John Ford's remarkable talkie of submarine warfare, "The Sea Beneath." In addition to playing a featured role, Collier also staged the production, in which George O'Brien and the New Viennese "discovery," Marion Lessing, have the leading parts.

"Submarine." The United States navy at manoeuvres is graphically portrayed upon the screen at Central Theatre where "Submarine" is being shown. The early sequences were filmed aboard the U. S. S. Tern, one of the best mine sweepers in the service. They show Jack Holt and Ralph Graves as petty officers at work dredging a Philippines harbour.

Against a dramatic background the picture illustrates how depth bombs are placed, divers at work attaching buoys to the wreckage and a daring bit of action in which Holt becomes entangled in a line going out with a bomb. He is dragged overboard and down to the wreck. Ralph Graves does an excellent bit of work in leaping over after him, takes a knife in his mouth and under water severs the cable.

Later action shows the fleet laying smoke screens, submarines rising and submerging, the ramming of a submarine by a cruiser and its descent. During the drop to the bottom, the interior workings of the boat are shown. The loss of control, the flooding of the batteries and generation of gas; the emergency oxygen and the care taken to prevent it being exhausted too rapidly; the psychology of the men, who are trapped and the methods employed to keep them in good spirits form part of this sequence. "Other scenes show divers at work, the signal system, the inability to stand the water pressure and the struggle to reach the lower depths. "Submarine" is full of drama, offset by some deft touches of comedy and a love story that is unique.

HALLOWE'EN NIGHT.

SCOTTISH VOLUNTEERS CELEBRATE.

CALL FOR RECRUITS.

Hallowe'en Night is essentially a Scotsman's celebration, but true to their national reputation, the members of the Scottish Company of the H.K.V.D.C., again shared the convivialities of the occasion with their Sassanach friends and comrades on Saturday, and the result was an evening of unalloyed pleasure in an atmosphere betokening the importance of this annual event.

The Volunteer Headquarters were artistically decorated, and all the ceremony which goes to make Hallowe'en Night something different from anything else was there. The hosts and guests were piped in to the "Bill of Fare," and the haggis was carried round the hall to the skirl of the bagpipes.

Later there came the time-honoured "dooking for apples," while community singing, led by Mr. G. McLeod, was not the least feature of a remarkably successful evening.

Lieut. A. W. Brown presided over the gathering, and was supported by Lt.-Col. L. G. Bird, D.S.O., O.B.E., Mr. A. Stevenson, Chieftain of St. Andrew's Society, and Mr. B. Wylie the Vice-President.

Chieftain Welcomed.

After full justice had been done to the excellent repast, and the loyal toast had been honoured, Lieut. Brown proposed the health of the visitors, in the course of which he said:

"It is a great honour for me to be in the position to propose the toast—'Our Visitors'—to have the privilege of welcoming so many of the Scottish Company's friends to this, our annual dinner. Captain Forsyth will be delighted to learn the number of old friends with us again this year. He has sent us his orders for to-night by cable—they are as follows:

'Hallowe'en Greeth a Drink Health.'

"It is with especial pleasure that I welcome our new Chieftain—Mr. Stevenson. Mr. Stevenson has long shown his interest in the Scottish Company, and a considerable number of the men on our Roll found their way to the Orderly Room for enrolment through his office. His slogan appears to be—'You're a Scot. Be a member of St. Andrew's Society, and wear the kilt of the Scottish Company.' H.K.V.D.C. The Company wish Mr. Stevenson a successful year of office, and assure him of every support.

"This year the Company have the honour of having the Vice-President of St. Andrew's Society in its ranks. No. 672, Private Wylie, B.—I wish I had the power to create a rank Super-Private—is our oldest active member, and the first President of the Sawdust Club, an Institution for members of the Company and 'brither' Scots, which provides for rattling bones, circulating stories (drawing room and otherwise) and genial good-fellowship after Thursday Parades. His bang on the table, and shout of 'How many are left in?' commands immediate attention.

"I am pleased to say the Company did very well indeed at the last Rifle Meeting. The standard of efficiency is very good, but I regret to say that our numbers are still far below what they should be when the number of active young Scots in the Colony is considered.

Officers Thanked.

"Before concluding, I would like to express to Colonel Bird the appreciation of the Company for the interest he has taken in us; also to Major Dowbiggin who acted as Commandant during Colonel Bird's absence on leave; for the assistance given during the past training season.

"The thanks of the Company are also due to Captain Goster, whose assistance in all matters of interest in the Company can always be counted upon—he is really a helping hand.

"To Lieutenant and Quartermaster Westlake I would also express our thanks. We worry him at times, but I have a feeling that he has a soft spot for the Scottish Company.

"I wish to take this opportunity of thanking all those members of the Company who have worked so hard to make this function a success, and I would make special mention of Corporal Braudo and Private Docherty—E. They have worked like Trojans and I trust you, our guests, will enjoy the result of their labours.

"Members of the Scottish Company, I give you the Toast—'Our Visitors.'

Tampans Should Assist.

Replying, Mr. A. Stevenson said that he noted there were only 24 members of the Scottish Company present that evening. It was regrettable that the Scottish Company had not turned out in better force. Hallowe'en Night was an annual event which they as guests always enjoyed and he was sure the Scottish Company enjoyed it quite as much. He thought it was up to the business men to see that newcomers to the Colony were put into harness straight away. Many people were snatched up by other units, but he thought he could take it upon himself to state that he had done something for the Scottish Company of the Volunteers, as eight representatives of his firm had joined the Company. They were all keen members including one of the pipers.

The position of Chieftainship, he said, was one of honour, but it was also an honorary position, and there were many things one had to do which he had not anticipated. But he was going to do his best to make it a big success, and with the support promised by the Reel Club, the Scottish Company and St. Andrew's Society, he hoped it would be a success.

Lt.-Col. L. G. Bird, in proposing the toast of the Scottish Company, said though he had attended many events in connexion with the Scottish Company, he thought he could say that never before had he seen the room so finely decorated. The arrangement of the tables too was entirely new and he had not seen anything better before.

Depression Over.

He would like to endorse Mr. Stevenson's remarks about his regret at the poor showing of the Scottish Company that evening, but he had been Colonel of the Corps for the last twelve years and he thought he was better suited to judge the position. He had noticed from time to time that the different companies developed keenness and efficiency, and he thought the Scottish Company was beginning to show that the period of depression had taken a forward turn. New recruits were joining up and the attendance at parades were very much better. He had also noticed a great deal more keenness displayed in the Pipe Band.

He himself, although only a Sassanach, could appreciate and enjoy pipe music, and he could also distinguish one tune from another.

The Sawdust Club.

Mr. B. Wylie, in acknowledgment, said he did not know whether he was host or guest that night, but would probably know by next week (laughter). There had been a lot of talk that night about the members of the Scottish Company. Some had been pessimistic, while Col. Bird had been rather optimistic. He was with Col. Bird. He thought volunteer companies were like political parties, they were often adding to their numbers. The same could be said of the Scottish Company recently; long may it continue.

Reference had been made that night to the Sawdust Club. He would not like any strangers to go away with any wrong impression of the Sawdust Club. He would not like them to think they were unduly hilarious and kept up until the small hours of the morning. As a matter of fact the club was simply this. The men came off the parade ground and got down studiously and seriously to discuss the intricacies of the machine gun—(cries of Oh!)—and the idiosyncrasies of N.C.O.s. (hearty laugh). There was one thing about the Sawdust Club: it was the cheapest club in Hongkong. There was no entrance fee, no subscription, and there had been occasions known when members of the club had had refreshments and had not had to pay for them. Naturally that was just as it should be when they considered the nationality of its founders.

Note of Regret!

He had, however, to sound a note of regret! It had been noticed that the officers were frequenting the private canteen. But that was because the private canteen was such a convivial place. They had much to thank Major Dowbiggin for, who had made the social amenities of that canteen what they were to-day.

Captain Stewart then called on the members of the 93rd Highlanders to drink the health of the Scottish Company, during which he said the 93rd claimed that they were a much travelled unit, but wherever they went found Scotsmen, who gave them examples of their national hospitality such as had been shown that evening. They were particularly proud to find Scotsmen in all parts of the world but more especially as they always found them to be leaders of the nations with whom they came into contact. They of the regular army were merely the vanguard of the nation's army, keeping the enemy at bay until they of the volunteers joined them on equal footing as they did in 1914. Everywhere the Scottish regiments in the Far East and West were not the least stars among the constellation of their firmament.

Rest of the Programme.

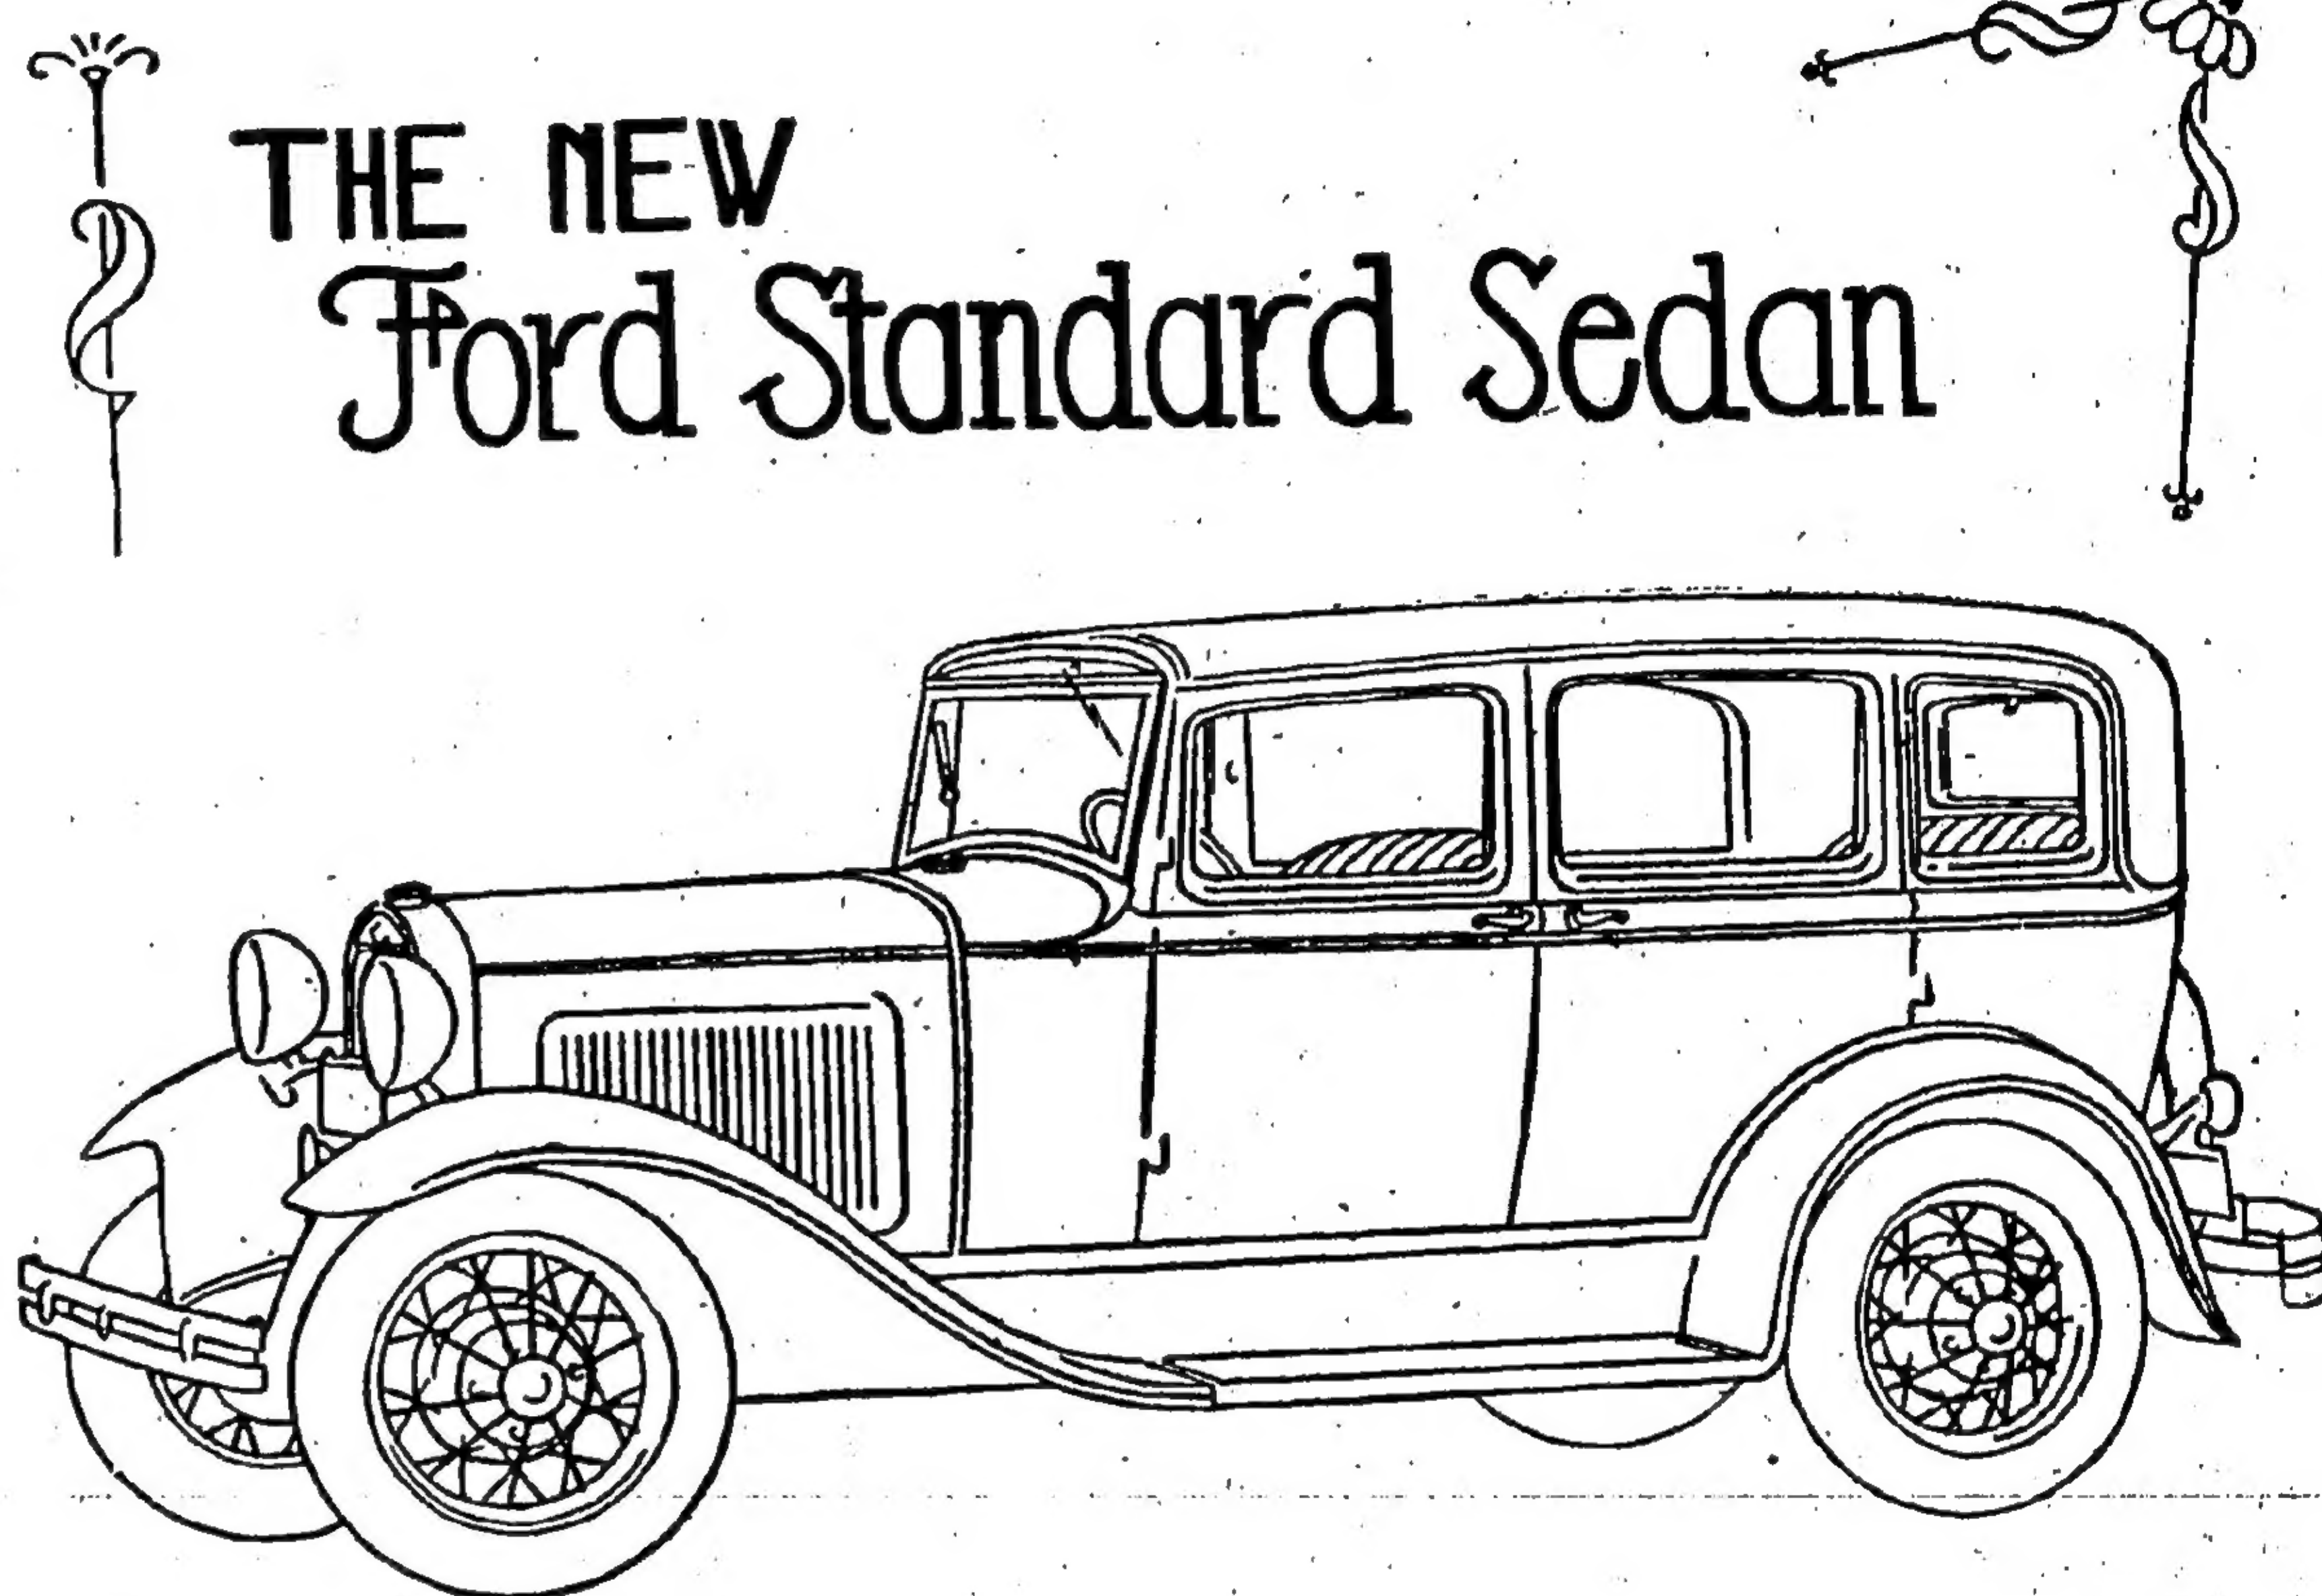

The speeches were interspersed with songs and dancing. The Misses Margaret Mackie, Doreen Brown, Audrey Goodman and Master Robert Parkinson delighted with some Highland dancing, while Mr. C. Jackson kept the company in good spirits with some real Scottish humour. The vocalist of the evening was Mr. G. McLeod, who also led the community singing, and Lieut. Graham was vociferously received when he sang a humorous Scottish ditty.

Piper Major Mackie, with Pipers Nesbit, Wilson and Watson added to the gaiety of the function with some pipe music, and Mrs. W. Fleming efficiently accompanied at the piano.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought to a close a very happy and memorable function.

Tokyo, Oct. 27.

Late last night a fire broke out in the Municipal Electricity Bureau. It destroyed practically the entire building. No casualties have been reported.

A CONSERVATIVE car of good appearance and quiet simplicity. The New Ford Standard Sedan is a most serviceable family conveyance, with a foamy interior, trimmed and upholstered in excellent taste. The front seat is adjustable. The rear seat easily accommodates three persons. Doors, both front and rear, are wide and permit easy access. There's a convenient dome light.

And, of course, included in all models are the regular Ford standard features . . . Triplex shatterproof windshield—Rustless Steel for all exposed metal parts—sturdy bumpers—four genuine Houdaille shock absorbers—completely enclosed four wheel brakes—Economy—Reliability—Long Life—Good dealer service.

This sedan is now larger and embodies many de luxe improvements. The windshield has the approved 10-degree slant for greater beauty and safety, while the straight-line treatment of the moulding is an authentic beauty note.

THE ANTI-MUTSAI SOCIETY.

that this form of evil should not be permitted to exist in this age of equality and modern progress. For this, I pledge the full and continued support of all our members and the entire community."

Mr. J. D. Bush's Speech.

The Hon. English Secretary, Mr. J. D. Bush said: "Reviewing the records of work during another year of this Society's existence, both the Chairman and the Chinese Secretary have given you a clear perspective of the problem still confronting us. I am in accord with their viewpoints in that much more could be done by way of more effective inspection and control. The many subtle forms of the mutsai problem are so difficult to grapple with, so hard to define and to drag into the light of justice. Do not forget that in the crusade in which we are engaged, the supreme struggle is with the formidable powers of darkness that muster their forces constantly to set at naught all the efforts made towards a final completion of our emancipative work. As the years pass, it becomes more and more evident that through the restraint of law mankind may be delivered for a time from wilfulness and wickedness as well as weakness. The fundamental change of heart and conscience, however, depends not upon legislative action alone but upon the educational and social forces. At least the three potent factors should be working hand in hand without let or hindrance."

Vicious Circle.

To demonstrate to you that the habitual maltreatment, buying and selling of mutsai, adopting "daughters" for immoral purposes and trafficking in "unwanted" children are still moving in the same vicious circle, I will cite some of the cases from my records of the year under review as follows:

On November 5, 1930: A reply was received from the S.C.A. concerning the ill-treatment of a mutsai. "The Magistrate to-day dismissed the charge of ill-treating a mutsai, but fined the defendant $100 on the alternative charge of assault. The little girl is in the Po Leung Kuk pending the arrival of her parents to take her away."

On November 7: Regarding the complaint of a little girl, the following reply was received from the S.C.A.: "Contrary to the information contained in the third paragraph of your letter, the girl told me that she had never been confined to the opium smoker mentioned, though the suggestion had been made. I sent her to the Po Leung Kuk to await the arrival of relatives to take her back to her parents in the country, to whom she expressed a desire to return. This girl was returned to her mother on 10th November, 1930."

November 18: About a girl, this was a reply from the S.C.A.: "I saw the father and her employer, in the mother's presence. The girl refused point blank to go with her mother, saying she preferred to remain in her employer's home where she seems to be well-treated and happy."

December 15: Concerning a girl, the S.C.A. said: "I have seen all the parties concerned or their representatives, and I think have made the girl's free status clear to all."

January 16, 1931: With reference to a girl, the S.C.A. said: "I have eventually persuaded her to go temporarily to the Salvation Army Women's Industrial Home. While the girl is in the Home, at any rate, the ex-mistress will not be permitted to pester her."

Mutsai Disappears.

January 27, 1931: Concerning a mutsai at Wing Fung Street, the

S.C.A. wrote in reply: "With reference to your letter of 19th instant, further ill-treatment of the mutsai living at Wing Fung Street has been observed by the girl's disappearance on that date. No trace has since been found of her. As, in the absence of the mutsai, I can take no further action in the matter."

February 21: Regarding a woman at Queen's Road, accused of ill-treating a little girl, the reply from the S.C.A. was as follows: "With reference to your letter of the 4th and 12th instant the case of the 4th and 12th instant a little girl ... failed through lack of direct evidence to the status of the child, whom the defendant claimed as her natural daughter, is under consideration, the child remaining temporarily in the Po Leung Kuk."

March 4: There was a case of ill-treatment of an unregistered mutsai, the S.C.A. wrote as follows: "With respect to the case you brought to my notice on the 27th February there was no evidence of any specific ill-treatment. The employer was charged with keeping an unregistered mutsai and was fined $50 or one month's imprisonment. The girl was returned to her mother."

April 1: A complaint regarding a girl being brutally beaten at Gough Street, the S.C.A. said that the girl was found to be a mutsai but a relative of the woman accused of ill-treatment.

April 1: Re-complaint of ill-treatment. The S.C.A. could find no evidence of ill-treatment. The girl was returned to her aunt.

April 2: Concerning a woman trafficker at Woosung Street, after a thorough investigation, the S.C.A. found the evidence to be absolutely without foundation.

June 16: Ill-treatment of a girl at Shamshui. The reply from the S.C.A. "Unfortunately the woman implicated had already left for Canton. Girl restored to her natural mother."

July 23: A girl was returned to her mother's family unconditional and that no monetary compensation can be claimed by her former employer.

Girl's Suicide. July 21: With reference to a woman trafficker, the case was still under consideration. "With regard to a mutsai who committed suicide by hanging, the Coroner's verdict was suicide while of unsound mind, and the fullest investigation disclosed no other possible alternative."

August 11: A reply from the S.C.A. "With reference to your letter of 7th instant, reporting four cases of girls suspected to be unregistered mutsai, I beg to inform you that one is a registered mutsai, another is the niece, a third is a registered mutsai, and the fourth was formerly a registered mutsai but is now a paid domestic servant in another household. There are no grounds for thinking any of these girls are unhappy or ill-treated."

September 24: Another reply from the S.C.A. "With reference to your letter of 11th instant, I beg to inform you that the girl is a registered mutsai and is perfectly happy with her employer. The subject of marriage has been broached from time to time, but the girl does not wish to be married. Recently the employer had a quarrel with a co-tenant, and this information was probably the result of spite on the latter's part."

September 24, 1931: Concerning the ill-treatment of a mutsai at Tai Hang Village, the S.C.A. said: "There was no evidence of ill-treatment, but as she was not satisfied to remain in her present employment, and as her employer was also not content with her behaviour of late, she was sent to the Salvation Army Home."

October 6: A reply from the S.C.A. "With reference to your letter of 30th September, I beg to inform you that thorough investigation has shown the girl to be an adopted daughter. She does not in any case do very much, if any domestic work. According to her own statement, she voluntarily hands over the bulk of her wages. Her employer has never urged her to be a prostitute. The girl probably wants to keep her earnings—hence her complaints. She is now living with her aunt (or cousin) and I do not anticipate any further trouble."

According to records, there was buying and selling in this Colony as late as May, 1930. The case in which a girl was sold for $130 and the parent was not permitted to redeem the girl, as explained by the Chinese Secretary. The foregoing cases have been cited at some length in order to indicate the devious ways resorted to in the evasion, and nothing short of a body of inspectors who have a deep and abiding interest in the care and protection and in the improvement of the social condition can do anything to safeguard the mutsai and so called adopted daughters against the various forms of exploitation.

Work to Be Done.

The task set before us for the ensuing year then, is (1) to work for a social reform in a modest but determined manner to put an end to the temporizing or compromising on the problem. The outline and organization of this phase of the work will have to be thrashed out by the Executive Committee.

(2) There should be more publicity in the local press persuading the public that persons laying the information should not only be more specific in the facts of the case but also to give the informant's own name and address, which will help ever so much in ferreting out conclusive evidence in respect to cruelty, trafficking and the like.

(3) The Society should enlist the services of a legal adviser in prosecuting to a more successful conclusion the emancipative work of the Society.

(4) The Society should communicate further with Social Service Bureau to co-operate in adopting sterner measures to check the exploitation of mutsai for various purposes.

In conclusion, let me express on behalf of the Society our gratefulness to Sir John and Lady Simon, K. C. M. A. for their unfailing sympathetic interest in the work of our Society. Last but not least, we wish to make our grateful acknowledgment to the British Commonwealth League for having passed the following Resolution in a recent Annual Conference:

"This Conference welcomes the action taken by the Secretary of State for the Colonies in relation to the Ordinances bearing on the Mut Tsai System in Hongkong, and urges the appointment of inspectors for the vigorous and immediate enforcement of this ordinance, and for the efficient inspection of all existing Mut Tsai."

Chinese Secretary's Speech.

The Chinese secretary, Mr. Wong Tso-tin, also reviewed the work of the Society for the year under review at some length and mentioned that as compared with 64 cases of ill-treatment of the past year 31 cases came under the attention of the Anti-Mut Tsai Society in the current year. Mr. Wong stated that despite the vigilance of the workers of the Society and the strict measures adopted by the Government lately, another case of buying and selling of slave girl was reported to the Society by a woman who complained that she had made repeated attempts to secure the freedom for her daughter, Chan Chung-mun, but all to no purpose.

Mr. Wong concluded by stating that the owner of the slave girl eventually succeeded in getting the girl out of the Colony to Chinese territory despite the strong protest of the girl's parents. It was also disclosed that the girl, age 13, was sold to her mistress in May 1930 for $130.

PROSPECTUS PUBLISHED
LOCALLY.The prospectus of the Far East Brewery, Distillers and Dairy Farm, limited, incorporated on July 30, is published in this issue. The capital of $1,000,000 has been divided into 100,000 shares of $10.The objects of the company are to carry on the business of brewers, malsters, wine and spirits merchants, cordials, ice manufacturers and dairy farmers. It is proposed to open a brewery at Canton, as there has not yet been a brewery there, combined also with the fact that the consumption of beer in China is gradually increasing. In addition to the manufacture of beer, the company also proposed to carry on the business of manufacture and sale of ice and cordials and aerated water and dairy farming.The climate condition at Canton are suitable for the manufacture of beer.
It is claimed, suitable for the manufacture of the company's products. A suitable site is available and immediate steps are being taken to secure an option over the site selected. The site has an abundance of water at its frontage and also by boring. Ne-gociations have already been entered into for the purchase of a plant, and the services of a brew-master are available.Directors are: Harry Goldenberg, Wu Chong-tong, Chan Sing-cho,
General Kan Chock-ching, Liang Cho-
wu, Lo Nin, Dr. Wu Pak-ling, Chan Kai-fai, Leon Walsh. The acting secretary is Jose Ligas, and the registered office, Taping Building, 16, Queen's Road.

SATURDAY'S BAZAAR.

WOMEN'S GUILD AND
THE M.C.L.Amusement for young and old alike was provided at the Children's Fete and Sale of Work held by the Hongkong Women's Guild and the Ministering Children's League on the Volunteer Parade Ground Saturday afternoon.The weather was ideal—pleasantly warm in the sun—and a spirit of revelry was manifest, to the obvious benefit of charity. There was a big gathering and one of the most interested visitors was Lady Peel.Mrs. H. T. Gray and her band of devoted workers had not laboured in vain. Theirs was the pleasure of seeing the grounds, now transformed into an amusement park, thronged with visitors. There was no formal opening ceremony for the large attendance—the visitors just looked naturally to the occasion.Aunt Sallies, coconut shies, lucky dip, weights competitions, and dart-throwing, were among the more familiar features and there were several new forms of amusement to stimulate fresh interest, such as the Human Seal and a species of miniature golf played with a cement ball and wooden mallet on an uphill course.Ranged around the boundaries of the enclosure were a variety of stalls maintained by the different centres and branches of the Guild, displaying toys and seasonable goods. There were also stalls in connection with raffles.Mrs. Gray and her associates received able help from the Hongkong Volunteer Force and members of the Navy, Army, Police and Prison Departments, as well as by the staffs of a number of schools and their pupils. To these the grateful thanks of the Guild are extended.

CAR OVER A BANK.

THREE LOCAL RESIDENTS
IN MISHAP.Three members of the Craighnower Cricket Club were involved in a motor accident early yesterday morning, when they were on a drive round the island. Fortunately the mishap was not a serious
one, only slight injuries being received, although one of the party was detained in hospital, believed to be suffering from an internal injury in the chest.It appears that Messrs. H. Watt, G. White and A. L. de Souza were in public car No. 525, which was taking them round the island, when the steering gear went out of control near Aberdeen about 3 a.m.Fortunately the car was not proceeding very quickly, and although it dished over an embankment, the occupants were not severely hurt.A passing car took the party to the Aberdeen Police Station where a report of the accident was made,
and then to the Government Civil Hospital. Mr. White received an injury to his ear, and Mr. Souza had a wound in his right foot.These two were not detained, but Mr. Watt, believed to have suffered internal injury in the chest, was kept in hospital.

ARMAMENTS TRUCE.

TEN COUNTRIES AGREE TO PROPOSAL.London, Oct. 31.
Ten countries, including the United States, Japan, Italy, Holland, Spain and Scandinavian countries have now agreed to the League of Nations proposal for a year's truce as regards armaments.Italy has undertaken to apply the truce in connection with her own armaments, provided that other countries give the same assurance.France has informed the League that it will accept the truce, from November 1, provided that it is also observed by France's neighbours.A message from Brussels states that M. Hymans, the Foreign Minister has announced that Belgium will participate.—Reuter.

SUFFRAGE FOR ALL IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Vote Given to Women of Twenty-one.

Before a packed house, the victors' galleries filled with lending Filipino and American women,
the members of the House of Representatives in Manila battled all day last week over the bill on woman's suffrage, finally passing it, 38 to 14.

A last-minute rally of the opposition, led by Representatives
Serrano, Maramba and Gregorio Anonas, failed to sidetrack the measure and a proposed amendment was defeated, 35 to 20. The amendment provided, that voting
on the suffrage bill be postponed until next year, to be taken up within the first 15 days after the opening of the legislature.

Not only was the victory complete, but the house measure which was passed, contained an amendment to the election law offered by Representative Serrano Cabahug of Cebu, giving the women all the privileges of men voters, without a single exception.

Age Limit 21.

The bill as passed by the house
grants suffrage to women 21 years of age owning property to the value of P500, or who annually pay P500, or to a woman who is able to read and write either Spanish, English or a native language.

The approval of the bill in the house made both the supporters and the opponents of the bill happy with the exception of those who feel that there was a trick on the part of the opponents in passing the full suffrage measure.
The ladies that filled the gallery beamed with smiles and thanked the voters full-heartedly.

DISPUTE OVER WAGES.

COMPLAINANT WINS
HIS CASE.

GOOD IN LAW.

The case in which Choi Chuen,
formerly employed by the China
Bus Company as a fitter, summoned his late employers for wages in lieu of notice was concluded at the Kowloon Magistracy before Mr.
Fraser this morning when his Worship made an order that the complainant be paid $17.50, which represented half a month's salary.

Evidence was given this morning by the foreman fitter of the China Motor Bus Co., who said that the complainant was consistently late in going back to work,
and on one occasion refused to obey orders. The complainant, he said, was sometimes lazy and his work on the whole, was unsatisfactory.

His Worship said that when the complainant was employed, it was not made clear to him that one of the Company's rules was that all fitters were on probation for three months, and that notice was required either way. Mr. Fraser said that in law, the complainant was right, and his decision was in favour of Choi.

HAWKERS ABOARD SHIP.

THREE FINED AT THE
MARINE COURT.

Three hawkers were charged before the Hon. Comdr. Hole, at the Marine Court this morning, with having boarded the s.s. Hong Kong without the permission of the master on October 29. All defendants pleaded not guilty.

Sergeant Cameron said that about 4.10 p.m. on October 29, he went on board the Hong Kong, and found the three defendants on the main deck with bundles of clothing. He asked them if they had permission to be on board.
They replied that they had not. He then took them to the Chief Officer,

FURTHER RISE IN DOLLAR.

MARKET STILL VERY UNCERTAIN.

CROSS-RATE DOWN.

Reacting to a further rise in silver, the Hongkong dollar was again up this morning, the demand rate being 1s.3.3/16d. The future,
however, is very uncertain.

Silver is up 3/8ths in London on India buying, with an absence of selling. In New York, the rise was from 30.7/8 to 31.1/8.

Again contrary to expectations,
the New York-London cross-rate dropped to 3.83 3/4.

In Shanghai, the rates are 1s.
8 1/2d. and 1s. 8.5/16d., with the market dead. There will be no afternoon business for three days,
in consequence of the Races.

No business is reported locally,
the nominal rates being 1s. 3 1/2d.
and 1s.3.5/8d. The market is dull and uncertain.

In India, the market has been very excited in consequence of various rumours of purchases by a big European syndicate, but these have been discounted in London. A complete absence of internal consumption is reported, and Bombay has at least 300 days' supply.

who informed him that no permission had been given them to be on board.

The spokesman of the party said
they had gone to the shipping company's office that morning and asked for permits to go on board, but they were informed by a gentleman
there that permits were not necessary, hawkers being allowed to go on board to sell their goods owing to the depression in trade.

In reply to the Magistrate, the spokesman said that he could not produce the gentleman who had told them that permits were not necessary.

The Magistrate fined each defendant $10 or in default ten days' imprisonment.
